DEATH OF THOS. LANDERS

Former Stevens Pointer Passes Away at Hot Springs, Ark.—Remains Were Buried at Port Washington.

News of the death of Thos. Landers, who for a number of years prior to about twenty-five years ago was a well known logger and lumberman in this section and made Stevens Point his home, has been received. He passed away at Hot Springs, Ark., last Wednesday, where he had resided with his daughter, Mrs. Geo. A. Callahan, during the past few years.

For a time the family lived on a fine farm in the town of Carson, and after leaving here Mr. Landers lived at Merrill. Disposing of his interests in the lumbering business to his partners, L. N. Anson and John Landers, the latter a cousin of the now deceased, he purchased a farm in the town of Pewaukee, four miles from Waukegan. He was married at Port Washington about thirty-five years ago, his wife dying in childbirth on the farm in Carson one year later, leaving a daughter, Eleanor, who is now the wife of Mr. Callahan. About eight years ago he met with an accident at Waukegan. A spirited team he was driving ran away, fracturing one of his limbs very badly and he sustained other injuries from which he never recovered. Mr. Landers was 77 years of age, born in Ireland, and was a kind-hearted man, the possessor of a genial disposition. At one time he belonged to Stevens Point Branch, No. 11, Catholic Knights of Wisconsin, but was transferred to Waukegan, and was a member of the branch there at the time of his death.

Opened For Business.

The Arnott State bank, the opening of which was delayed a week longer than anticipated by the non-arrival of their manganese steel safe, began business last Monday morning and during the day received deposits approximating $7,500. This is a fine showing and in view of the fact that many other large and small deposits have been received since then or are promised, the success of Portage county's newest banking institution seems assured. Chas. Breitenstein, Arnott's leading merchant and all around good citizen, is president, and C. G. Himley cashier. The latter has had practical experience in this business and is withal a pleasant gentleman to meet. Herbert Neitzel, a recent graduate of the Stevens Point High school, performs the duties of bookkeeper.

Back From Sand Point.

Solon H. Sherman, who has made Sand Point, Idaho, his home for the past five years, arrived in the city Tuesday morning accompanied by his little son, Warren. Mrs. Sherman died soon after their arrival in the west, and the boy has been cared for by his grandparents, who also reside at Sand Point. Mr. Sherman has a valuable timber claim near there, is well pleased with the climate and country, but is as glad to get back to the old Wisconsin home as his friends are gratified to welcome his return, and he will remain here indefinitely. He left last evening for the old homestead in Buena Vista where he spent his childhood and early manhood days, to visit with his brothers and sisters.

ELECTED 12 DELEGATES

Portage County Democrats—Chosen for State Convention at Milwaukee Tomorrow.

The Democratic mass meeting was held at the council chamber Monday afternoon, as per call, for the purpose of selecting 12 delegates to attend the state convention, to be held in Milwaukee, Thursday. The meeting was called to order by E. D. Glennon in the absence of the chairman, T. H. Hanna, and P. H. Cashin was chosen to preside, with D. J. Leahy as secretary. A committee composed of John Een, J. W. Brown and E. D. Glennon, was appointed to recommend a list of delegates, and made the following report: J. W. Brown, Dr. D. S. Rice, E. D. Glennon, D. J. Leahy, H. J. Finch, P. H. Cashin, Dr. C. von Neupert, Sr., P. J. Bresnahan, Barney Polebitzki, Martin Pionke, L. L. Nelson and G. L. Koch. The recommendation was adopted.

At this time H. L. Kellogg of Bancroft, who is a candidate for the Democratic nomination as assemblyman, addressed the convention, reading from a well written manuscript that he had carefully prepared, in which he told of the wrongs of our political enemies, and lauded the Democratic nominees for president and vice president, Wilson and Marshall.

The following resolutions, prepared by W. G. Bate, were read by that gentleman, and unanimously adopted, after which J. W. Brown highly recommended each sentence contained therein and urged continuous and undivided work on behalf of the Democrats of Portage county and the country at large.

Resolved, That we, as representative Democrats of Portage county, Wisconsin, in convention assembled, do heartily endorse the action of the National Democratic convention in placing in nomination Wilson and Marshall as our standard bearers in the presidential race. We also affirm the platform adopted at Baltimore and instruct the delegates from this county to the state convention to stand firmly for the nominating of state officers and the adoption of a platform in accordance with the National convention.

REGULAR CHICAGO STYLE

South Side Girl Alleged to be Purse Snatcher—Caught After Long Chase.

Gertie Pestka, about fifteen years of age, was the cause of considerable commotion about the Soo passenger depot and in that vicinity, last Wednesday evening. Miss Margaret Sabell, a young lady who is employed at Plainfield, came up that day enroute to her home at Merrill to spend the 4th. She carried a handbag enclosed in which was a small purse containing a railroad ticket from Plainfield to Merrill, $3 in paper money and some silver and while strolling along the platform the Pestka girl quietly gilded up to her, unclasped the handbag and in another instant was running at top speed through the waiting room with the purse in her possession. Officer Coan was near the west end of the platform at the time, but as soon as apprised of the circumstances he took up the trail with the aid of his rig, which fortunately was driven to the depot at this moment by Dewey Coan. The Pestka girl had run east past Sutherland's restaurant, but Tom's detective instinct told him that she would not continue going in that direction and he therefore drove north a couple of blocks along Division street, when he espied a female whose actions gave him reason to believe might be the party he was seeking.

Jumping out of the buggy, Mr. Coan asked her name, which she said was Wolfe. He then enquired her street and number, which she attempted to evade by saying that she was in a hurry. That she had no further time for conversation at this moment became evident. Without the formality of saying "good bye," Gertrude started on a mad run up the street, with the policeman in hot pursuit. Mr. Coan carries considerable avoirdupois, but he is also some sprinter, and after a chase of considerably less than a mile he overtook his quarry. In the meantime the girl had dropped a small basket she carried, in which were a couple of eggs, two buns and the purse. The latter was restored to Miss Sabell, who was compelled to miss her train connections, as No. 5 was just pulling in to the depot when the robbery occurred.

The Pestka girl was taken to jail and kept there until this morning, when Judge Murat committed her to the industrial school at Milwaukee.

He was not only a prominent business man and pioneer resident of this section, but a genial, whole-souled gentleman, one whose friends were numbered by the hundreds. His sons and daughters have the satisfaction of knowing that their father's long life upon earth was a well spent one and that the world is better for his having been part of it.

Worked For a Good Cause.

The ladies of the Woman's Club who sold badges, ice cream and lemonade for the hospital benefit, at the South Side, the 4th of July, met with excellent success, their total receipts amounting to $116.35, while the actual expenses will not exceed $25. Out of this fund, however, the ladies will pay for 5,000 small flags which were bought, only a comparatively small number being sold on the 4th, and the others will be used on "tag day," during the fair in September. The cost of this consignment was $50. The ladies feel thankful to all who assisted in any manner, and the liberality usually shown by the great majority on occasions of this kind is an incentive for even greater exertion in behalf of this good cause in the future.

AGAIN BY THE SAME SCORE

The Elongated White Sox Recruit Once More Shuts Out Grand Rapids—Cy Is Going Away.

The largest collection of bugs ever gathered together since 1912 started saw the old reliable Pointers redecorate with the whitewash brush the sandy little outfit that Grand Rapids entrusted to our care. We returned them to their owners after applying two coats of Cy's famous never-come off paint. Today the owners have sent them over for exterior trimming. We have hired an artist by the name of Count De Brenner to do this work. Let's wish him well, for the subjects he has to work upon are hard ones to handle and if Artist Brenner does not use his best brush we imagine the scenery will appear a trifle too blue. Let's hope his paints are mixed to perfection.

Last Sunday's game was a "sizzler." Bunny Powell scored the winning run in the 3rd inning. That was all that was necessary. But, say fellows, not so loud in the 9th inning any more.

It sure was some close game; we have got to acknowledge that Grand Rapids has a team equal to our own in every department but the slab artist. That's going some too, for we think we have the best team we ever had representing "little Stevens Point." The tabulated score below can be studied out to a nicety, so what's the use of writing more than necessary these hot days:

Summary—Two-base hits, Dohr, O. Gregory. Sacrifice hits, Youngman, Schreier. Double play, Young to Loberg to Garlic. Stolen bases, Henning, Nigor, O. Gregory. Bases on balls, Young 2, off Nelson 2. Hit by pitched ball by Young, Reed; by Nelson, Nigor, O. Gregory. Struck out, by Young 10, by Nelson 2. Umpires, Nash and Mosel.

A WORLD'S RECORD.

Cy Young, who is about to leave us, has played 76 consecutive innings without allowing a score. He made 110 strikeouts in 8 games. Allowing less than 4 hits to a game is his average. Is it any wonder that Ted Sullivan, the White Sox scout, is taking our "white wash king" away from us? We are glad and sorry to see you go, Cy. When we say glad, we really mean proud, for you are going to put us on the "big league map." We are sorry to see you go, for it means we have lost our "one best bet" pitcher. Our best wishes go with you, "Motor cycle Cy."

This forenoon she was removed to the residence of Matthew Ryan, on Strongs avenue, so that she may receive the best care and treatment possible.

At St. Paul's Next Sunday.

The services at the Methodist church next Sunday morning will be at 10:45 o'clock; the Sabbath school at 9:45; the evening service at 7:45. At the last named service the choir will give a sacred concert consisting of anthems, duets, solos and hymns by the congregation, a cello solo will be rendered by Jos. Kimball, a trombone and cello duet by Valentine Putz and Jos. Kimball. Miss Etta Bloye is the accompanist. A silver collection will be taken up.

Will Soon Move.

The new Stevens Point postoffice building is completed and ready for occupancy, with the exception of the revolving front door, the bronze casing for which has not yet arrived, and the lighting system, which is put in by a firm from Reading, Pa., is not yet complete, awaiting the arrival of a workman from that place. The removal may be made next Saturday evening, but Supt. O'Brien says that it is certain it will not take place until everything is finished.

Fatal Auto Accident.

Miss Nannie Turrish, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Turrish of Duluth, a young lady who has a number of friends and acquaintances in this vicinity, having visited here a number of times in the past, had a narrow escape from death on Tuesday night of last week, while three other occupants of a touring car owned by her father, in which they were riding, were killed. These were Mrs. Wm. White of Duluth, Miss Gladys Richardson of Bridgeport, Conn., and Langford Maddigan, the chauffeur. The car skidded from the road, overturned and the three last mentioned were killed instantly. Miss Turrish was picked up apparently lifeless, but will fully recover, it a pleasure to state. Miss Richardson was a college chum of Miss Turrish in an eastern institution and came to Duluth to spend her vacation. Mr. Turrish accompanied the remains to Bridgeport.

Much Lightning Last Night.

The most terrific lightning storm that has been experienced in this section this season, or in fact for some years, occurred last evening at about 6:45 o'clock, and it is indeed surprising that more damage than the few incidents reported did not result. Unquestionably there are few people in the city who did not believe that something or somebody in their immediate vicinity was struck by one particularly rebounding bolt, and a number of people felt the shock, resulting in nervous breakdowns. Green Bros. barn in the rear of their residence on Normal avenue, was struck, but by the prompt attendance no fire resulted.

A large cottonwood tree just to the east of T. W. Anderson's home on Main street was struck by lightning last evening and badly splintered. Mr. Anderson and his niece, Miss Ella Cline, were much shocked but otherwise unharmed.

During last evening's storm, at about 6:45 o'clock, a bolt of lightning hit the chimney on Leslie E. Bourn's house at 426 Patch street, scattering the bricks in all directions. A considerable quantity of plaster in the room below was knocked off, but beyond this no damage was done. Mrs. Bourn and son were at home at the time, but although badly frightened, they were unharmed.

ARE YOU GOING TO WAUSAU

Big Ten Days Chautauqua Commences There Next Friday—Held at Rothschild Park.

The Chautauqua consists of lectures and entertainments to be given in the Rothschild Park pavilion, a few miles south of Wausau, July 12th to 21st. The pavilion has many of the most modern features that make the place one of especial advantage for listening to lectures and musical entertainments. It is fitted with a perfect ventilating system, equipped with fans, so that on the hottest days of summer an audience may be comfortably cool. The exits are numerous enough to empty the great hall in a very short time. The dining hall, where the meals will be served at reasonable rates, and where lunches and light refreshments will be served, is pleasantly furnished.

The immensity of the musical program to be given at the Chautauqua is of special significance. For the hearing of these it would be profitable for anybody to travel a considerable distance. Their merit is worthy of drawing power many leagues beyond the immediate environs of Wausau. Wausau people have an opportunity, therefore, to make known to their friends these attractions and thus for this reason, at least, to attach another quality to their already attractive city.

HAVE A BIG POTATO FARM

The L. Starks Co. Have Purchased a Ten Thousand Acre Tract in Oneida County.

The L. Starks Co. have purchased about 10,000 acres of land within twelve miles of Rhineland, the tract being bought from the Menasha Wood-ware Co. and comprises about two-fifths of town 37, range 10, with the old townsite of Pennington near the center. Oneida county is getting to be a successful potato raising center, the soil being much the same as Portage county, and a contract has already been let by Mr. Starks to clear a 2,000 acre farm as soon as possible. The balance of the lands will be sold to actual settlers and a practical effort made to develop the entire territory within the radius of Pennington, which will be made a central business point.

The Ducking Stool.

One of the wise old customs practiced by our English and New England forefathers was the employment of the ducking stool. When people became obstreperously opinionated, or slanderous, or too free in criticizing the community, they were taken to the water's brink and publicly ducked. Nearly every town had its ducking stool, and it undoubtedly exercised a wholesome influence in the community.

This form of punishment has been deprecated by later generations on the score of cruelty; but where the cruelty comes in it is hard to see. From the physical standpoint the ducking stool method of punishment could have been little more than uncomfortable, and mentally it was less severe than many forms of refined torture employed in modern criminal procedure. Whether cruel or not, it was very effective and admirably adapted to "make the punishment fit the crime." The person who is loud in voicing contrary opinions is generally making a bid for public notice, and it is quite fitting that such notice should be accorded him at the ducking stool.

Today we have no ducking stool. Possibly that is why we have so many fault-finders. For when society dropped the ducking stool it also dropped some of its healthy intolerance of such individuals. We cannot revive the ducking stool, but we can and should revive that ancient and honorable disgust for the fault-finder, the "knocker," the muck-raker, the anti-social critic. They are a stumbling block to progress and should be kicked ruthlessly out of the way.

Diminishing Railway Returns.

Confidence in the ability of a railway company properly to continue its operations and adequately to maintain and extend its facilities depends in greatest measure upon its net operating revenue. This is what is left of the receipts from traffic constituting the total operating revenue, after the operating expenses have been met. As the mileage of the railways tends to increase year by year, an accurate measure is obtained of the operating revenues, operating expenses, and net operating revenue by ascertaining what they have amounted to for each mile. It may be, for example, as was the case in March, that while in the aggregate net operating revenue has increased, it has decreased when measured per mile of line.

Monthly summaries of the revenues and expenses of the steam railways of the United States have been compiled by the Bureau of Railway Economics from the reports filed month by month by the railways with the Interstate Commerce Commission, for the twenty-two months from July, 1910, to April, 1912, the latest month for which returns are available. Net operating revenue per mile of line for the railways as a whole in comparison with the corresponding months of the previous year decreased in eighteen of these months, and increased in but four. The decrease per mile of line per month was as great in amount as $53, and as great in ratio as 15 per cent. The greatest increase for any one of the four months showing increases was $31, or 141 per cent. This was in February, 1912, and was exceptional as this month contained one more day than February, 1911. The highest average net operating revenue per mile of line for any one month of this period was $409, the lowest $203.

Seven of the ten months from July, 1911, to April, 1912, show decreases in net operating revenue per mile of line as compared with the corresponding months of the fiscal year ending June 30, 1911, and eleven of the months of the fiscal year which ended June 30, 1911, showed decreases in comparison with the respective corresponding months of the fiscal year ending June 30, 1910. It is therefore evident that the trend of railway net revenue has been downward for the past two years. The summary for April, 1912, shows that net operating revenue was less than for April, 1911, by $6,026,440, equivalent per mile of line to $33, or 14.1 per cent. This net operating revenue, which in the aggregate amounted to $56,362,945, averaged $8.57 for each mile of line for each day in April, less by $1.11 than for each day of April of last year. This is the gross income per mile of line per day before anything has been taken out for taxes, rentals, interest on bonds, appropriations for betterments or dividends. Taxes for April amounted to $44 per mile of line, an increase of 6.4 per cent.

TOMAHAWK CHAUTAUQUA

Fine Program Arranged for the Week of July 21st to 28th—Oratory and Music.

Tomahawk is now calling the attention of northern Wisconsin to its 1912 Chautauqua, to be held July 21 to 28—eight days—in the beautiful Bradley park. The program this year is considerably stronger than the very successful one last year. Among the noted names appear Gov. J. Frank Hanley, the noted Hoosier statesman-reformer; Congressman James E. Watson, one of the few truly eloquent men in public life—"big-hearted" Jim Watson; Capt. Richmond Pearson Hobson with his record for daring, achievement and ability to persuade; Col. Geo. W. Bain, laurel-crowned Kentucky orator, with no adverse criticism in all his 40 years of public speaking; Robert Parker Miles, greatest painter of word pictures in America; Judge Frank P. Sadler, patron of good Americanism and integrity because of his insight and plain speaking on criminals; Gabriel R. Maguire, Irish orator, traveler and missionary; Father J. E. Copus, S. J., head of the School of Journalism, Marquette University; Captain Jack Crawford, poet scout; Robert O. Bowman, king of character portrayal; Frank M. Sheldon, head of Congregationalism in Wisconsin; Frederick P. Selden, successful and eloquent Chicago preacher; Robert F. Merritt, strong teacher of teachers and parents; Maude America Stevens, unrivaled in impersonations of childhood and power to interest them.

The musical aggregations embrace three of first quality—Schumann quintet, Wehrmann quartet and Lewis company.

An illustrated booklet of complete announcement and information is ready and will be sent to those desiring fuller information.

THE DAY WE CELEBRATE

It Was Observed with Parade, Pomp, Fireworks and a General Good Time at the South Side.

The Fourth of July in Stevens Point brought forth the usual enjoyment for young America and also seemed to be enjoyed by the community in general. A shower of rain at about 3 o'clock in the morning was followed by a down-pour at 10:30 a. m., which lasted over an hour and those who happened to be caught outside could console themselves with the knowledge that every drop that fell brought relief to growing crops and was a benefit to the community in general. Among those who received a thorough drenching were the participants in the celebration parade, which left the South Side shortly before 10 o'clock, the line of march being north on Strong's avenue to Clark street, west on Clark to Second street, over to Main, thence east to Division and down Division to the place of starting. Those who failed to get under cover before the storm broke, looked as though they had been given an emersion in the waters of the Wisconsin. The rain had the effect to cut out the balance of the program for the forenoon, including the promised orations, but after dinner the South Side square and adjoining streets were crowded with people who came to witness the innocent sports that were carried on for several hours. There were also several other attractions, including slack wire performances and contortion acts by Al. Rosard, which were among the best ever seen here.

The forenoon parade was led by Nick Miller and R. Sparks as marshals of the day, followed by several automobiles, city officials, clergy, etc., and then came the Union band, the members of the police department, occupying the patrol wagon, the fire department with their neatly decorated wagons, and displays by the Jackson Milling Co., Pagel Milling Co., Wear-U-Well Shoe Co., E. M. Cepps & Co., T. Olsen and the Eagle Art and Novelty Co. Several ragamuffins were also in evidence and Bill Linderman, with his four-wheel cart, advertised Kueper's Clothing Hospital as long as his strength and the heat of the day would permit. A $5 prize was awarded to N. Hoerter of the ragamuffin section, one for $3 to the Eagle Art & Novelty Co. and Linderman received $2.

The display of fireworks in the evening has been pronounced by many as the finest ever seen in the city, and the committee in charge of the illumination is to be congratulated on the successful manner in which each individual handled the duty assigned him. This is also true of all who are responsible for the celebration, most of them being South Side business men, the undertaking, attended no doubt with much hard work and disappointments, being all that could be desired, considering the short time consumed in completing the arrangements.

Potatoes a Wisconsin Asset.

There are those who assume that the present price of potatoes is a transient condition and that those who increase their acreage will be confronted with a slump in the market. This conclusion is not justified by the situation. For a number of years there has been a decline in the supply of potatoes in this country. The reason that prices have not been as high as the above statement would appear to warrant is in the fact that the commercial side of the trade has not been awake to the actual situation.

We now have the situation, modified by the fact that the production of potatoes has been affected in the irrigated states by certain diseases that have put many sections out of consideration, and this difficulty promises to increase rather than to decrease.

Again it is becoming more and more difficult to grow commercial potatoes in a considerable of the corn belt territory.

The urban population of the middle west is increasing by leaps and bounds and will continue so to increase.

Under these circumstances we are informed that 15,000,000 bushels of potatoes were imported into this country last year.

Surely adaptation to potato production is an asset to Wisconsin.

The Democratic Nominee.

Merrill Herald, Progressive Republican: The nomination of Governor Woodrow Wilson on the forty-sixth ballot at Baltimore, in the opinion of The Herald, is a fortunate thing, not alone for the Democratic party, but for the country at large. The nomination of Wilson saves the country from two standpat candidates by the two leading political organizations, which would have been the case if either Harmon, Underwood or Clark had been nominated.

Gov. Wilson is one of the cleanest men in public life. He is an even-tempered man, plain of speech and of great ability. He is a poor man. He will sympathize with the plain, common people. He is not a radical though a Progressive. Of Gov. Wilson it can truthfully be said that he is an able representative of the best thought in the United States today. He represents the political ideals as taught in practically all higher institutions of learning.

With such a man as Wilson as the candidate of the Democratic party, the issue in November cannot be in doubt. There are more than three million Progressive Republicans in the United States, as shown in Roosevelt's primary vote, that ought not hesitate, nor do we think they will, to vote for Governor Woodrow Wilson. In him the plain people have an ideal candidate.

IN THE SAME OLD WAY HAVE A JUNIOR COLLEGE

Stevens Point Base Ball Team Shuts Out Grand Rapids on Latter's Grounds, the 4th of July.

In a moonlight finish, Cy Young, aided and abetted to a considerable degree by eight young men from Stevens Point, handed Grand Rapids one of the most thoroughly satisfactory defeats administered by the locals this season. For twelve sizzling innings a minor Brown-Christy Matthewson duel kept the fans on edge, but in the lucky thirteenth, at the witching hour of seven, the spell was broken. Schreiner dropped a dinky little bunt in front of the plate, which Fess fielded easily and considerably threw over the first baseman's head, Pete ambling on to second. "Ole Reliable" Gregory made a perfect sacrifice, sending the manager to third, from where he scored on Nigbor's grounder to first, making the count 1 to 0 in our favor.

The game was marked by sensational fielding on both sides. In the fourth, the first Grand Rapids batter leaned on one of Cy's fast ones, sending a crashing hit almost to the fence, labeled for three bags at least. At the crack of the bat Bunny Powell turned and sprinted back, and just as the ball was coming to earth he turned and picked it off the fence. The grandstand rose to a man and gave him an ovation for his brilliant fielding.

Our rivals nearly put the game on ice in the eleventh. The first man up hit through short and went to second when "Nig" fumbled the next pitch. Batter No. 2 hit safely to right, and the crowd started to leave as the man on second came trotting in. Fishleigh out in right, however, was still in the game. He got the ball on the first bound and with a beautiful throw put the ball straight into Nigbor's mit, and the runner was caught a foot off the plate. It startled Cy so that he carelessly struck out the next two men.

The White Sox recruit whiffed seven men in the first three innings, getting a total of 21 shutouts to his opponent's 17. The Grand Rapids battery was Leston and Fess; the umpires Nash and Mosel.

NOTES.

Leston is a husky side-wheeler with lots of steam, and if he had not been opposed by another Ed. Walsh, would have won his game.

The locals had men on base in nine out of the 13 innings. In the fifth Fishleigh nearly scored on an infield hit by Powell. The umpire held the funeral at home plate.

In the fourth Cy beamed the second man up but was pulled out of the hole by a fast double play, Schreiner to Gregory to Garlic.

Leston had Garlic's number. "Home run Hans" whiffed thrice.

A bunch of local rooters got out on the third base line and made themselves "useful" that the Grand Rapids players had them ordered off the field.

Grand Rapids tried desperately to tie the score in the last of the thirteenth, but Cy settled down, fanned the first two and forced the third man to dribble a little grounder, which Cy tossed to Garlic for the last out. The line-up follows:

A Greater Variety of Courses Will be Offered at Stevens Point Normal Than Any Other in State.

At the meeting of the Normal School Regents, recently held at Madison, the board by resolution made provision for the introduction of two new courses in the Stevens Point Normal, becoming operative at the opening of school on September 2nd, viz: A rural school course designed to prepare teachers for the rural schools. This is open to eighth grade graduates, to common school graduates and to holders of unexpired third grade county certificates. This course gives thorough training in the academic and professional side of the common branches and in elementary science, agriculture and domestic science, together with two years' study of English and thorough grounding in educational methods and principles. The certificate granted for completing this course is good for three years for any county school or any state graded school in Wisconsin, excepting the principalship of a firstclass graded school. Before the expiration of this certificate it may be renewed for another three years by attendance for six weeks at some Normal summer session, virtually making the country school diploma a certificate for six years throughout the state. One and two year home makers' courses for high school graduates. These courses are open to all young women who are graduates of high schools and are courses in household arts and economics, designed to prepare thoroughly the students for the efficient and successful prosecution of the work and duties of modern housekeeping. The endeavor is to give the young people practical and scientific knowledge and training which will enable them to make the homes which they care for comfortable, sanitary and beautiful.

The introduction of these new courses this year and following the introduction of the college course last year, provide for definite extension of the work of the local Normal school. The attention of the people of Stevens Point, of Portage county and of the surrounding counties is called to the fact that they now have a junior college at their very door, affording great opportunity to ambitious young people who wish to take the college course after finishing the high school.

Stevens Point Normal now offers a greater variety of courses than any other Normal school in Wisconsin, affording unexcelled opportunities for training and culture to the young men and young women of central Wisconsin at the minimum of expense and the maximum of teaching efficiency.

Now at Head of Bell System.

H. O. Seymour has been appointed general manager of the Wisconsin Telephone Co. and will be located at the general offices of that company in Milwaukee.

It was decided that greater efficiency in administration could be secured by an organization which places an executive in charge of a company having supervision over the various departments, rather than have its various department heads report direct to specialists in their departments at Chicago, as during the past year.

Necessity for direct supervision from Milwaukee as arranged for is further increased by the necessity for close contact with the commissions and other utility governing bodies within the state, and also on account of a very large increase, not only in the telephones connected directly with the system, but also by the large number of independent telephone companies which are entering into connecting arrangements with the Bell system.

This new form of organization makes no change in the personnel or present form of organization in the various exchanges operating in Wisconsin, and there will be no general switching of employees. It simply means that the organization is strengthened.

The name of G. W. Hein, one of Stevens Point's best known insurance men, has been suggested for the position of Insurance Commissioner on the Democratic state ticket and may be placed before the convention in Milwaukee tomorrow. Mr. Hein is a thorough insurance man, is familiar with all its branches, and his candidacy would receive the hearty endorsement of hundreds of friends in this and adjoining counties, irrespective of party.

When the Canadian land agent wants you to leave Wisconsin and go 1,500 or 2,000 miles away to grow wheat (two-thirds of which last year was No. 4 and poorer) ask him why, as stated by his own government, there is less wheat in Saskatchewan this year than last year? It would be entertaining to get the agent's version of the reason for this condition of affairs.

Gov. Osborn of Michigan is one of the large number of Progressive Republicans in this country, estimated at at least 2,000,000, who does not believe in any half-way business; says he cannot vote for or support Taft, is opposed to the Roosevelt third party idea, and will cast his ballot for Wilson when he goes to the polls in November. Gov. Osborn places principle above party, and has the courage of his convictions.

The nomination of Gov. Wilson for President and Gov. Marshall for Vice President seems to have been an action of wisdom on the part of Democrats in convention at Baltimore, and while The Gazette favored the candidacy of Champ Clark, the Missouri war horse and statesman, it is well pleased with the outcome. In Gov. Wilson we have an efficient and able leader, a man whom every member of the Democratic party can cast his vote for without making any excuse. He is distinctly a true Democrat, a progressive in the broadest sense of the word, and is destined to lead the party to victory in the great battle yet to come. None but good words can also be said of Gov. Marshall, the clean and tried executive who is now serving his second term in Indiana.

Woodrow Wilson, the Democratic nominee for President, whose ability and popularity was recognized by the people of New Jersey by electing him as their governor, although the gentleman elected as lieutenant governor is a Republican, has declared his intention not to resign from the position to which the majority of the voters of his state wished him to serve, for the present at least. This does not seem to please certain Republican newspaper men in certain localities, who would have Gov. Wilson vacate at once, and they would, if possible, make political capital out of his action. In retaining the governorship and guarding the interests of the people of his state, Mr. Wilson is not establishing a new precedent. Others, even Republicans, have done so before and thus far no howl has been heard from the hills and valleys of New Jersey.

It was stated in a writup of the council proceedings last week that "the Water Co. have 153 hydrants in use, whereas the city is paying annual rental of $6,000, or $30 per year each for 200 hydrants." This statement was misleading, it was learned later. In its original franchise with the city, granted many years ago, it was provided that the city should pay an annual rental of $5,000 for nine miles of mains, the said nine miles to have thereon not less than 110 or more than 135 hydrants. Only 118 hydrants were placed on the original nine miles, the annual rental being $5,000. The annual rental for hydrants on additional mains and branches, as provided for by the charter is $30 each, and as we now have 153 hydrants, the city is paying $30 each per year for 35 hydrants, the difference between 118 and 153, a total of $1,050 annually, in excess of the $5,000 provided for in the charter, all of which is just and right.

Judge Byron B. Park spent a part of last week with a party of friends on a trout fishing expedition in the vicinity of Peshtigo, and of course were very successful, as fishermen generally are.

PORTAGE COUNTY BRIDES

Young Lady Residents of This County Get Married—One Goes to Lyndon and Other to Iowa.

M'KIBBEN-MISCHNICK. Tuesday morning, July 2d, at 8 o'clock, at St. Mary's parsonage, Waterloo, Iowa, the marriage of Miss Mary A. Mischnick to Ralph L. McKibben took place. Father H. L. Rahm officiating. The bride looked very pretty in a gown of white embroidery voile and carried a bunch of roses. The bridesmaid, Miss Emma Mischnick, sister of the bride, wore pink voile and carried a bouquet of roses. The groomsmen were William Hawkins of Waterloo. After the ceremony the party drove to the home of the groom's parents at 302 Conger street where a reception was held, many friends and relatives being present to take part in the festivities. A three course dinner was served, the dining room being decorated with smilax and sweet peas, two beautiful bouquets adding to the attractiveness of the table.

The bride is the third daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Mischnick of Eau Claire township, this county. For the past couple of years she had been a resident of the Iowa city. The groom is the only son of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. McKibben of Waterloo. He at present holds a responsible position with the Moore & Moore Lumber Co. They departed Tuesday night for Wisconsin to enjoy a month's visit at the home of the bride's parents, after which time they will go to housekeeping at 1104 Conger street, Waterloo. Both have many friends who wish them joy and happiness through life.

CZESKLEBA-EEN. Sunday morning, June 30th, at 8 o'clock at the M. E. parsonage in Wau-paca, occurred the marriage of Miss Anna Een to Victor Czeskleba of Lyndon, Wis. Their only attendants were Miss Mayme Een and Phil Czeskleba, sister and brother of the bride and groom respectively.

After the ceremony they drove to the Soo depot, the bride and her sister taking train No. 1 for Amherst, the groom and his brother following on the noon train.

The deception was carried out the entire day, even at the wedding of his sister, which occurred the same day. They left on the evening G. B. & W. train enroute to their future home at Lyndon.

The bride is the older daughter of John Een and has always made Amherst her home. She is an exceptionally charming young lady and an accomplished musician. She is a graduate of the local High school, class of '05, and since then has been a very successful teacher. She held the position of principal of the state graded school at Amherst Junction for three years, and later taught in the grades at Medford.

The groom is a former Amherst boy, a son of T. W. Czeskleba, and is highly spoken of by all who know him as a young man of exemplary habits and excellent character. He is engaged in the hardware business at Lyndon.

Miss Een and Mr. Czeskleba received a very large number of handsome and useful gifts of silverware, cut glass, china, etc., bearing out the esteem in which they are held by all who have the pleasure of their acquaintance. Sincere congratulations and best wishes for a long and happy future accompany them to their new home.

Welsby Manager of Company.

J. N. Welsby is now manager of the Auto Sales Co., in which he has been interested since its organization, about one year ago, succeeding Dr. J. M. Bischoff, who recently disposed of his interest in the company. Mr. Welsby's reputation as a hustler and wide-awake business man is well known, and to him is largely due the great success with which the Auto Sales Co. has met. Mrs. Welsby will assist in the office, having thoroughly fitted herself some time ago for that line of work, and will have charge of the company books.

All Were Frightened.

E. A. Oberweiser, manager of the Whiting-Plover Paper Co., accompanied by his wife and children, spent the 4th at Neenah and Menasha. They drove out to the water front on Lake Winnebago, and as they started back their car started to move down the dock before the chauffeur could get into his seat. The car went to the outward edge, the front wheels going over upon a launch that had just arrived, preventing the machine from turning turtle and saving the several occupants from a ducking, if nothing more serious. Beyond a little scare, no damage was done.

SHOWS HEALTHY GAIN

Nearly One Hundred Increase in School Census—School Board Makes No Change in Officers.

The old board of education met for the last time on Monday evening, with all members present except Elliott Martin. Miss Orelle Macklin applied for the position of assistant kindergarten teacher, which application was referred to the committee on teachers.

A communication from A. J. Winne of Madison, inspector of deaf schools, was read, in which he stated that he had visited the Stevens Point school June 14th and found everything running in a most satisfactory manner. He recommended the purchase of a loom for making rag carpets, this to be a part of the manual training instruction for the deaf, as this art might become useful to them in after years. The recommendation of Mr. Winne was referred to the committee on supplies for consideration.

An itemized statement was read by the clerk, showing the expenses of the deaf school for the past year to be $2,682.62, which sum had been paid out by the school treasurer, but will be reimbursed by the state. There is also a balance of $730.34 in the deaf school fund.

A. L. Lawson, manual training teacher, prepared a list of lumber that will be required in his department during the coming year, which was read by the clerk and referred to the committee on supplies.

As only one bid for painting the exterior of the Sixth ward school building was received, it was decided to advertise for additional bids during the present week. Bids for furnishing 95 gallons of linseed oil, 5 gallons of turpentine and 5 gallons of varnish, were received from C. Krembs & Bro. and the H. D. McCulloch Co. of this city and the Paragon Oil & Supply Co. of Oshkosh, and after being read the clerk was authorized to purchase from the latter company.

The committee on finance reported that the annual reports of the clerk and treasurer had been examined and found correct. Clerk Frank J. Blood read the following report of the present census taken by him for the present year, showing a gain of 96 over one year ago. There was an increase in all wards except the 1st, which shows a decrease of 7. The old board adjourned sine die:

	Male	Female	Total
First ward.....	184	190	374
Second ward.....	182	196	378
Third ward.....	239	288	527
Fourth ward.....	582	600	1,182
Fifth ward.....	247	254	501
Sixth ward.....	136	165	301

1,570 1,693 3,263
The total number of children in the city between the ages of 7 and 14 who attended school during the year was 1,338, of which 660 were public school attendants and 678 were private school pupils.

The new board was organized by the election of R. A. Cook as temporary chairman, who upon taking the chair good naturedly asked to be excused from making any extended remarks on account of the excessive heat. Mr. Blood was chosen temporary clerk and Messrs. Pasternacki and Dittman were appointed tellers. The report of the committee to whom the credentials of members elected last week had been referred, showed that the six retiring members had been re-elected, as heretofore published.

An informal ballot for president gave R. A. Cook 5 votes, W. S. Young 5 and E. M. Rogers 1. Mr. Cook thanked those members who had voted for him, saying that he desired no political honors, but rather preferred to work in the ranks. He declined to be a candidate. Mr. Young said that he had served as president for four or five years and felt as though the honor should be passed around. A motion to declare the informal vote formal and that Mr. Young be unanimously chosen was put and carried. The president, was put and carried. The newly elected president said he appreciated the honor, that it had always been a pleasure to work with the board, there not having been a particle of friction since he became president, and he thanked the members for his re-election. Mr. Young also stated that the chairman of the teachers' committee has to do a great deal of extra work and he felt as though the one holding that position should be remunerated. Mr. Anderson, who has been chairman for the past two years, stated that there was a great amount of work two years ago, but not so much during the past year.

It was moved that the salary of the clerk and treasurer be fixed at $150 and $75 respectively, the same as last year, and that the chairman of the teachers' committee receive the sum of $50 during the coming year. This motion was adopted.

A ballot for clerk gave Mr. Blood 7 votes, Dr. Rogers 2 and C. W. Simonson 1. Upon motion the ballot was made formal and Mr. Blood declared unanimously elected.

The bond of the treasurer for the coming year was placed at $20,000, and a vote was taken to fill that office, L. R. Anderson receiving 8, R. A. Cook 2 and C. W. Simonson 1. This ballot was made formal and Mr. Anderson declared the unanimous choice of the meeting. The president stated that he would name his standing committees and announce them next week through the local press.

Mr. Anderson said that some provision ought to be made so that the superintendent will not be obliged to ask permission of the board every time he desires to visit a school, attend a convention or go elsewhere in the interests of our schools. He said an opportunity occasionally presents itself which the superintendent might take advantage of, and he moved that the sum of $100 be set aside, to be drawn from the treasury in the usual way, for the use of the superintendent in paying traveling expenses. This motion was adopted. Mr. Roberts thanked the board for their action and said it would relieve him from embarrassment during the coming year. He also said that Miss Anna Wright desires permission to continue her work at the Normal after the opening of school, between 8 and 8:30 o'clock in the morning, so that she may later secure a full course diploma.

Nicholas Gross, who had been business manager of The Nooz, the High school paper, during the past year, he said, called his attention to the fact that the Sophomore class, who issued one number of that paper, were deficient about $18 in paying for that issue, but had $6 in their treasury, and therefore there is a balance of $12 still to be paid. The Freshman class also are behind $4.70 for getting out their number. The payment of the first named sum, he said, could be deferred until an entertainment is given next winter, but the latter, he thought, should be paid at once. This brought out some discussion, members declaring that if these bills were paid it would establish a precedent for the future, and the students should not call upon the board to pay bills of this kind. A motion to pay both bills and thus clean up the slate was made and carried, Messrs. Rogers, Anderson and Blood voting in opposition.

Messrs. Pasternacki and Blood were appointed to look after the renting of the fair grounds for foot ball games during the coming fall, and Adolph Cook called attention to the lack of deadening in the High school floors over the basement, and while the necessity was recognized by the members present, it was deemed not advisable to take any action at this time.

More Drug Gardens.

Two years ago Dr. H. S. Card began at his Main street home the growing of ginseng. Later he added Golden Seal and seneca root. He has now outgrown the limits of his Main street grounds and finds the business increasing so rapidly that he has purchased several acres of ground from the Rothman estate and is now engaged with a force of men putting in an acre of Golden Seal plants. At this writing he has six roofs, each 100 feet long and 8 feet wide completed and some twelve thousand plants in, also a fine well on the grounds. He will erect a wind mill as pumping power and install a system of pipes, making a complete system of irrigation. The doctor is certainly succeeding in doing a thriving business in drug farming and it gives employment to a number of men. He is a hustler and is at the gardens with his force of six men early and late.

WAS SICK MANY MONTHS

Peter Ash, Aged Briggs Street Resident, Called to His Final Reward—Funeral Held Sunday.

A long illness, covering a period of several months, ended at 1:20 last Friday afternoon in the death of Peter Ash at his home on Briggs street. Mr. Ash had been afflicted with sciatic rheumatism for about two years, was confined to his home over four months and hovered between life and death for about three weeks before the final termination.

Peter Ash was a native of Germany-Poland and was in the 76th year of his age. He was married in his native land and came to America with his family in 1869. For a number of years they resided in Tennessee and also in Missouri and Illinois, and came to Stevens Point in 1885. Since then this city had been the family home continuously. He was highly respected in this community, being an upright, conscientious citizen, and for a number of years before he was compelled to quit work, was in the employ of the city. His first wife died six years ago and he is survived by his second wife and four sons, Jos. M. Ash of this city, John and George of Battle Creek, Mich., and Albert of Milwaukee.

The funeral was held from St. Peter's church at 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon, Rev. S. A. Elbert officiating, and the remains were escorted from the house to the grave in the parish cemetery by St. Peter's Society, about two hundred strong, to which organization the deceased belonged, members of that organization acting as pallbearers, as follows: Matthew Fliska, Jos. Jerzak, Lawrence King, Michael Zilka, John Haza and Anton Hintza. George Ash of Battle Creek was the only one from outside who was able to be present, one of the other sons, Albert, being quiet ill at his home in Milwaukee.

One Eye Removed.

John O'Keefe, of the firm of C. F. Martin & Co., suffered the removal of an eye last Monday morning, the operation being performed at the Martin home, 814 Center avenue. Some twenty years ago a piece or speck of steel entered the eye and it was supposed to have been successfully removed, causing the victim no inconvenience until about two years ago, when the sight began to fail and this was attended with considerable pain. The other eye became affected in due time, long treatment proving of little or no avail, and to save the sight of the one eye, the other was removed, as above stated.

Were Wedded in Chicago.

Miss Josephine Bannach of Custer, who has been teaching at Marshfield, was married to Merton Vanderhoof of that city on Wednesday last, the ceremony being performed in Chicago by Rev. Chas. V. Burton, pastor of the Grannville Presbyterian church and an old friend of the groom. Elmer Dickinson and Miss Ethel Vanderhoof accompanied them from Marshfield and were attendants at the marriage.

The Marshfield Herald says that the groom is the son of Mrs. J. A. Vanderhoof, a young man of exemplary habits and well liked by all who know him. For the past five years he has held a position in the Marshfield postal service as city letter carrier. The woman of his choice is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Bannach of Custer, a young lady surrounded by a host of friends in that city, where she has taught in the public schools the past two years. After a short lake trip the newly weds will return to Marshfield to make their home and receive the congratulations of their many friends.

When Her Back Aches

A Woman Finds All Her Energy and Ambition Slipping Away.

Stevens Point women know the aches and pains that come when the kidneys fail make life a burden. Backache, hip pains, headaches, dizzy spells, distressing urinary troubles, all tell of sick kidneys and warn you of the stealthy approach of dropsy or Bright's disease. Doan's Kidney Pills are for the kidneys only. They attack kidney diseases by striking at the cause. Here's proof of it in a Stevens Point woman's words:

Mrs. C. Larson, 616 Water street, Stevens Point, Wis., says: "We would not be without Doan's Kidney Pills in the house for we have found they are unequalled for the cure of kidney complaint. I publicly endorsed them in 1907 and at this time, I am glad to do so again. My kidneys were weak and inactive and the secretions caused me a great deal of annoyance. I had acute attacks of backache and there were pains through my loins. Dizzy spells bothered me, I was nervous and when I got up in the morning, often had pains in my sides. Doan's Kidney Pills, procured from Taylor's drug store, restored my kidneys to their proper working order and after that all the symptoms of my complaint disappeared."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cts. Mailed by Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agent for the U.S.

Remember the name—DOANS—and take no other.

HINTS FOR THE BUSY HOUSEWIFE

Flour Sifter That Can Be Operated With One Hand.

The old fashioned flour sifter required two hands for its operation. It was held in one hand and a crank turned by the other hand to operate the beater. The sifter herewith illustrated is a one handed implement. In general appearance it resembles the old type, but the beater is operated by continually squeezing and releasing a spring attachment to the handle. This is a flat strip running beneath the handle proper and connected with it by a coiled spring. By squeezing this strip against the handle the beater is turned one way, and when the grip is released the spring sends the strip back again and the beater turns the other way. A guide wire prevents the strip from wobbling out of its path. The convenience of such a utensil will be recognized at once.

Vegetable Purée.
Put one ounce of suet in a frying pan, cut into it one small onion, one carrot, one turnip and one potato. Stir until all the vegetables are slightly browned, then turn them into a soup kettle. Add two tablespoonfuls of rice and two quarts of cold water. Simmer gently one hour, then press the whole through a very fine sieve. Return to the soup kettle, add two level tablespoonfuls of cornstarch moistened in a little cold water, stir continually until it boils, add a seasoning of salt and pepper and serve. This soup should be about the consistency of cream. If after you have finished the boiling it should appear too thick add a little hot water.

Rhubarb Meringue Pie.
Either fresh or canned pieplant may be used. Take enough stewed pieplant for one pie, about a half pint, and stir into it while boiling a heaping teaspoonful of cornstarch mixed with the yolks of two eggs, a cupful of sugar and one tablespoonful of butter. Have ready a pie tin lined with a nice crust already baked. Spread this with the pieplant mixture and cover with a meringue made of the whites of the eggs beaten stiff with two tablespoonfuls of sugar. Set in the oven until nicely browned and serve cold.

Laundering Towels.
Oftentimes the towels become gray and dingy looking. Treat them in this manner, and they will become white again: Place them in a kettle and cover with cold water. Add shavings of pure white soap and the juice of a lemon. Place on the back of the stove and allow the water to gradually come to a boil. If very much soiled the process may have to be repeated. Rinse in tepid water, then in a slightly blue water, and hang in the air to dry.

Stuffed Peppers.
One and one-half pounds lean fresh pork, put through a grinder with three pieces of garlic. Add one-half cupful washed rice, a teaspoonful salt, one-quarter teaspoonful black pepper. Take six green peppers, cut off tops, take out all seeds, wash and stuff with above mixture, which has been well mixed. Take a can of strained tomatoes, place stuffed peppers in and let boil one and one-half hours until rice is soft.

Codfish Balls.
Half a pint of picked or shredded codfish to a pint of potatoes, the latter being boiled while the codfish is being picked. Then add the fish and cook until tender, drain and mash. An egg, a tablespoonful of butter and two tablespoonfuls of cream should be mixed with the fish and potato. When cool make into balls and fry in very hot fat. Some roll in egg and breadcrumbs.

Light, Flaky Pastry.
To make light, flaky pastry chop the lard and butter through the flour with two knives instead of using the hands, which make the mixture too compact. Add the cold water gradually and mix with a fork, lifting it lightly through the flour. The baked crust will be in delicious, flaky layers.

Steamed Suet Pudding.
One cupful suet chopped fine, one cupful raisins, one cupful molasses, one cupful milk, three cupfuls flour, one teaspoonful soda, one and one-half teaspoonfuls salt, one-half teaspoonful clove, one-half teaspoonful nutmeg, one teaspoonful cinnamon. Steam three hours.

Mail Carriers Will Fly.

This is an age of great discoveries. Progress rides on the air. Soon we may see Uncle Sam's mail carriers flying in all directions, transporting mail. People take a wonderful interest in a discovery that benefits them. That's why Dr. King's New Discovery for coughs, colds and other throat and lung diseases is the most popular medicine in America. "It cured me of a dreadful cough," writes Mrs. J. F. Davis, Stickney Corners, Me. "after doctor's treatment and all other remedies had failed." For coughs, colds or any bronchial affection it's unequalled. Price 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free at H. D. McCulloch Co.'s.

STORIES OF PIUS IX.

The Lady Who Told the Pontiff She Wished He Were Dead.

Lady Paget in the Nineteenth Century has a chapter of recollections dealing with life in Rome during the first years of completely united Italy, when Lady Paget's husband was British ambassador to the Quirinal. Among her stories are some of Pope Pius IX., which show that pontiff in a most amiable light. Though the pope had twice excommunicated the king, they really loved each other, says Lady Paget, "for they were made of the same kind of stuff, and both belonged emphatically to the days that are past and gone. Impulsive in action, primesautier and generous in temperament, they allowed themselves the luxury of sometimes letting their feelings deviate from what others might consider the stern path of duty."

When King Victor Emmanuel died his chaplain, against all rules, gave him absolution for everything, though he was under the major excommunication. The pope sent for the priest, inquired most feelingly about the king's last moments, and when the chaplain confessed Pius IX., with tears in his eyes, cried: "Hai fatto bene! Hai fatto bene!" ("You have done well! You have done well!")

Another story illustrates Pius IX.'s sense of humor. It concerns Mme. de Corcelles, the wife of the ambassador to the Vatican, a delightful old lady, who often visited Lady Paget, in spite of prohibitions. "For," she declared, "I am the granddaughter of Lafayette, and I do what I please." She never addressed the cardinals as eminence, but hailed them in cheery tones as her "dear cardinals." When one day she visited Pius IX. he asked her whether she had seen all the sights of Rome. "Yes, holy father," she replied, "but I should dearly like to see a conclave."

This story was told by the pontiff himself.

Fairies—Good and Bad.

Deep down in their hearts, if the truth were told, the majority of grown-ups have a strong regard for fairy stories, and there are few of us with so little imagination that we have not a liking for these light, fantastic tales. Just as there are all sorts and conditions of men, so are fairies diverse as a class. The banshee is an Irish fairy, and Scotland calls it a brownie. An elf is a fairy of diminutive size, supposed to be fond of practical jokes. Genii are eastern spirits, sometimes good, but occasionally bad. A gnome is a guardian of a coal mine or quarry and a goblin a phantom spirit. Imp is the Welsh spirit of mischief and jack-o'-lantern a bog or marsh fairy who loves to mislead. Every one knows the mermaid as the sea spirit, and naiads are water nymphs. Oberon was king of the fairies, and a pixie is a fairy of Devon. Puck, full of fun, is Swedish, and a sylph is a spirit of the air.

DAMES AND DAUGHTERS.

Evening newspapers report that Kath Little Engelbach is the first woman to pass the government examination as a master butcher.

Mrs. Clarkson Cowl of New York has presented to the Metropolitan Museum of Art in that city a painting called "An Old Time Melody," by the late Francis D. Millet, who went down with the Titanic. Mr. Millet was a trustee of the museum.

Miss Della M. Stickney is leading the campaign for the introduction of domestic science into the curriculum of all women's colleges. Miss Stickney is a graduate of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, where she specialized in domestic science.

Miss Ellen Stone, the missionary who was captured by Bulgarian brigands in 1901 and held for $75,000 ransom, is preparing to return to the Land of the Crescent, believing that danger to missionaries has now been reduced to a minimum. She went to Turkey in 1873 and took up the mission work at Samakor.

Pen, Chisel and Brush.

Renou, the great painter, who has passed three score years and ten, is one of the best loved artists in France.

Miss Caroline A. White, the oldest living writer, at the age of 101 years is reported still active with her pen at Upper Norwood, England.

Charles J. Mulligan, to whom the state of Illinois has made the award for the erection of the monument in memory of Ninian Edwards, first territorial governor of Illinois, is a well known Chicago sculptor. He was born in Armagh, Ireland, in 1837, but came to this country when quite young, studying under Lorado Taft, the Chicago master.

The Cookbook.

Apple fritters or fried apples go well with roast goose.

A roast of veal will be greatly improved if it is larded. This prevents its being dry and tasteless when cooked.

Stale macaroons, which can be bought cheap at the baker's, make the tastiest addition to pudding and custards if pulverized and sprinkled over the top.

When cooking beets for table use try baking them as you would a potato. They retain all their juicy sweetness and are much superior to boiled beets and less trouble to prepare.

In Hamburg the nature of the soil is such that no very tall buildings can be erected, and there are few that have as many as ten floors.

The oldest pavement in cities of the modern world is in Cordova, Spain. The Moors put it down in the ninth century. They also established waterworks with pipes of lead.

Now comes a Norwegian who has invented an "unsinkable" lifeboat. Where has the public heard that word before?—Kansas City Star.

Lifeboats, while not "absolutely unsinkable," are reasonably trustworthy and cheap. This will be a record year for their multiplication. — St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Town Topics.

If any man tells you that Kansas City is bankrupt shoot him on the spot.—Kansas City Star.

Chicago certainly leads the parade having an all night theater. It is the only city in the country where the man who reaches home at 3 a. m. has a good excuse.—Cleveland Leader.

New York might fairly be called the Charlotte of the north—very progressive, very sure of itself and very attractive to all who go there even for a brief space.—Charlotte Observer.

General Brown's Invasion and Lundy's Lane --- President's House and Capitol
Burned---Battle of New Orleans
*****

By CAPTAIN GEORGE L. KILMER.
II.

GENERAL HARRI-SON pushed the fighting rapidly
against General Proctor and his Indian allies as soon as Perry had swept the British ships from Lake Erie. The
fleet which had won
the victory on Sept.
10, 1813, carried
Harrison's troops
from the Ohio shore
to the Canadian

peninsula, opposite. There, in the battle of the Thames, on Oct. 13, he captured all of Proctor's white soldiers, routed the Indians and killed their chief, Tecumseh. Michigan was saved.
Both sides entered the campaign in 1814 with renewed vigor. In Europe
Napoleon's doom was sealed and England could spare troops for the American war. Over 30,000 were sent across the ocean during the year. The Americans gathered on the New York border, prepared to carry the war into Canada. Early in July General Jacob Brown's forces crossed Niagara river and seized Fort Erie. The British under General Riall attacked the invaders at once. Colonel Winfield Scott led the American advance and sent Riall's column flying to the shelter of Fort George, on Lake Ontario. A month later 1,500 British and Indians
again stormed Fort Erie with the cry,
"No quarter!" The commander and over 200 of his men were killed. Brown held the fort until November, then retired to the New York shore. This ended General Brown's invasion, the chief event of which was the battle of Lundy's Lane, fought July 25.

Scott's Battle at Lundy's Lane.

After the American forces had established themselves on Canadian soil, between Lake Erie and Ontario, in the summer of 1814, General Brown adopted the policy of threatening various points on that side of the boundary in order to prevent his opponent, General Riall, from making a counter invasion across Niagara river, in New York.
Yielding to the urgent solicitation of Colonel Scott, who commanded one of his brigades, he ordered him to threaten Forts George and Niagara, and thus put the enemy on the defensive.
Scott was in the road in twenty minutes. His force numbered 1,200 men and included a battery and two companies of mounted men. The British, who soon appeared on his front, he promptly attacked and unintentionally opened the battle of Lundy's Lane.
Riall was in readiness for battle. His troops numbered 4,500. His position was on an eminence along which ran Lundy's lane, a highway between Niagara river and the head of Lake Ontario.

The British opened with musketry and cannon, and Scott accepted the challenge just as though the entire American army was at hand. Between the British left flank and the river there was a space left vacant, but at the moment of Scott's attack re-enforcements for Riall were marching up to occupy it. They never got there, however. Scott saw the open space.

He detailed the Twenty-fifth regiment, under Major Thomas S. Jesup, to crawl through the bushes that covered the ground, reach the enemy's left flank and turn it. Jesup struck the opening of the lane into Queenstown road, where supports were marching to Riall's assistance. His movement kept off re-enforcements that would have turned the tide against Scott.
Jesup also made prisoner of General
Riall.
Scott had expected that he himself
would be re-enforced. At 9 o'clock General E. W. Ripley's brigade marched upon the field, and the Twenty-first regiment, under Colonel Miller, immediately charged the cannon in the British center, capturing seven pieces.
Three desperate counterattacks were repelled by Ripley, and meanwhile Scott's brigade bore the brunt of the fighting on the main line.
Scott was severely wounded early in the fight. He kept the field, however, and ordered a charge all along the line
to support Miller's attack on the guns.
Then the battle was over.

Wresting Victory From Defeat.
East of Ontario the British forced the fighting in 1814. In February they raided and plundered Ogdens-burg. In midsummer Sir George Prevost advanced as far as Plattsburg, which he besieged. At the same time
a British fleet appeared on Lake Champlain. Prevost was repulsed in an attack on Sept. 6 and after the defeat of the British navy on Lake Champlain by Captain MacDonough's fleet retreated to Canada.

The British fought the battle on Lake Champlain Sept. 11, 1814, with odds of guns and men in their favor.
After the ships closed in there was a furious cannonading for one hour.

In a single broadside the English flagship Constance killed and wounded
forty men on MacDonough's flagship Saratoga. In time the engaged side of the Saratoga was disabled, and the day seemed lost. MacDonough had prepared for a calm and, when he found his vessel unable to move for lack of a breeze, swung the flagship around, bringing fresh guns to bear.
In a few minutes the furious fire of the Americans compelled the Briton to strike.

Meanwhile the British plundered and destroyed on the Atlantic coast, which they kept under strict blockade from Maine to South Carolina. The whole of eastern Maine was held by the British, and in August, 1814, they bombarded Stonington, Conn., from warships, intending to invade the state.
They were repulsed by militia.

British Take Washington.

In August a force under General
Ross landed from ships on the Patuxent and simultaneously threatened both Baltimore and Washington. On Aug. 24 Ross suddenly struck out for Washington, routing the militia at Bladensburg. Entering Washington, he fired the capitol and the executive mansion. President Madison was at Bladensburg and escaped capture.

From Washington Ross moved on Baltimore and while a British fleet bombaraded Fort McHenry gave battle just outside the city. He was killed, and his force repulsed. It was while watching the fortunes of the star spangled banner on Fort McHenry
during the naval bombardment that Francis Scott Key conceived his immortal lines, beginning:
Oh, say, can you see by the dawn's early light
What so proudly we hallo'd at the twilight's last gleaming?

Pensacola was the British base on the Gulf of Mexico. Attempts to capture Mobile were frustrated by General Andrew Jackson in November, 1814, and the British proceeded to New Orleans, where Jackson brought them to account in the final and most deperate land battle of the war.

Andrew Jackson In the Field.

Within five days from the time the news of the declaration of war in 1812 Jackson had tendered his services with 2,500 Tennessee militia. The massacre of 400 whites by Creek Indians at Fort Mims, on Lake Tensaw, Alabama, aroused the Tennessee whites, their nearest neighbors, and Jackson marched to the Alabama wilderness.
The Indian power was crushed by one Napoleonic blow.

But the history of battles, Jacksonism or otherwise, gives no parallel of Jackson's fighting energy at New Orleans. He reached the city worn with disease and hardship. Before he slept he had made a tour of the improvised line. To the governor, council, citizens and military he had one stereotyped answer. "Attack the British whenever and wherever they appear."

When the fleet sailed into the outer lake, sweeping the Louisiana navy from the sea, he ordered the commander of a chain of forts below the city to "defend the fort to the last extremity."
At the last extremity spike guns, blow up fort, retire and fight again."

Early one afternoon three strangers were brought before him to announce that the British had landed below the city. Coughing that immortal expletive,
"By the Eternal!" his clinched fist striking the table in emphasis, he declared, "They shall not sleep, on our soil." Then to his staff he said: "Gentlemen, the British are below. We must fight them tonight."

At 6 p. m. three forces were moving through the darkness to "corner" the foe on Villere's plantation. They fought until a heavy fog obscured what light there was, and, finding the odds enormous, Jackson retired to the Rodriguez canal. He had kept his word and fought the British, and the sound of his guns was like the blast from the whistle of a highland chief.
Fighters sprang from levee and wharf and plantation, like Scotsmen from the heather.

The Cotton Bale Ramparts.

Jackson spent day and night forging weapons to "sweep the British into the river or bring them prisoners to New Orleans," which he did on Jan. 8 following. And when the guns of his cotton bale redoubts opened fire that day his warcry bore the old impatient refrain. "Give it to them, boys!" said
he. "Let us finish this business today."

FOR WOMEN ONLY.

That is the nature of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription—the one remedy for women which contains no alcohol and no habit-forming drugs. Made from native medicinal forest roots. Dr. Pierce tells its every ingredient on the bottle-wrapper. Prominent physicians and some of the best medical authorities endorse these ingredients as being the very best known remedies for ailments and weaknesses peculiar to women.

MRS. COFFEY.

This is what MRS. GENETTI E. COFFEY, of Longstreet, Ky., says: "I feel it my duty to write and tell you what your medicines have done for me. I was a great sufferer for six years from a trouble peculiar to women, but I am thankful to say, after taking four bottles of your 'Favorite Prescription' I am not bothered with that dreadful disease any more. I feel like a new woman. When I first wrote you for advice I only weighed 115 pounds—now I weigh 135. 'I thank you very much for your kindness. You have been as a father to me in advising me what to do, so may God bless you in every effort you put forth for good. 'I hope this testimonial will be the means of some poor suffering woman seeking health."

Dr. Pierce's Medical Adviser, newly revised up-to-date edition, answers hosts of delicate questions about which every woman, single or married ought to know.

What Makes a Woman?

One hundred and twenty pounds, more or less, of bone and muscle don't make a woman. It's a good foundation. Put into it health and strength and she may rule a kingdom. But that's just what Electric Bitters give her. Thousands bless them for overcoming fainting and dizzy spells and for dispelling weakness, nervousness, back-ache and tired, listless, worn out feeling. "Electric Bitters have done me a world of good," writes Eliza Pool, Depew, Okla., "and I thank you with all my heart for making such a good medicine." Only 50c. Guaranteed by H. D. McCulloch Co.

A nature faker in Colorado says he owns a lamb with a hoof at the end of its tail. Although its economic value is in no way increased thereby, the lamb is saved a good deal of trouble when it feels like kicking itself.

Choice of a Husband

Is too important a matter for a woman to be handicapped by weakness, bad blood or foul breath. Avoid these kill-hopes by taking Dr. King's Life Pills. New strength, fine complexion, pure breath, cheerful spirits—things that win men—follow their use. Easy, safe, sure. 25 cents at H. D. McCulloch Co.'s.

The medical opinion that women read faster than men because the blood flows more freely in the posterior part of their brain may be a technical ex-

Buggies and Wagons.

I wish to announce that I am now receiving my line of buggies, carriages and wagons. They are all of the best make and I am selling them at rock bottom prices. Call and look the line over. Peter Trierweiler, 308-310 Clark street.

The Record-Herald.

If any of our rural readers wish the Daily Chicago Record-Herald, one of the most reliable papers printed, in connection with The Gazette, the price for both is $4.25, or only 25 cents more than the regular price of the former. These terms are only for people residing on rural routes in Wiscon-sin.

If you are a housewife you cannot reasonably hope to be healthy or beautiful by washing dishes, sweeping and doing housework all day, and crawling into bed dead tired at night. You must get out into the open air and sunlight. If you do this every day and keep your stomach and bowels in good order by taking Chamberlain's Tablets when needed, you should become both healthy and beautiful. For sale by all dealers.

DIED NEAR DORCHESTER

Mrs. Dennis Loughlin, Formerly of Stockton Township, Passes Away—Buried at Custer, Monday.

At her home near Dorchester, last Thursday evening, occurred the death of Mrs. Dennis Loughlin after an illness extending over eight weeks. Prior to this time the deceased was apparently enjoying her usual good health. Her illness first appeared with smothering spells and the best physicians were called in and her trouble diagnosed as fat of the heart, which quickly developed dropsy in a complicated form. During her illness she remained in a sitting position night and day, but never a complaint escaped her lips either as to her sufferings or the nature of her illness.

The deceased lady's name was Margaret Coniff. She was a daughter of John Coniff, who for several years prior to his death was numbered among Portage county's foremost citizens. She was born in Beloit, Wis., Dec. 16, 1857. When a small child death deprived her of her mother but in later years she was fortunate in having a good stepmother to look after her welfare and who was with Mrs. Loughlin during her last earthly hours. While Margaret was yet a child the family moved to Stockton where the now deceased was united in marriage July 10th, 1879, to Dennis Loughlin. They resided on the old Loughlin homestead up to 13 years ago when they sold the property and bought a farm near Marshfield. Three years later they sold this place and purchased a fine farm near Dorchester.

Of the above union nine children were born, all living excepting one child who died in infancy. They are Dr. J. T. Loughlin of Kesholt, Mrs. Herman Kronschnabel of Dorchester, Mrs. Andrew Marks of Marshfield, and the Misses Jennie and Ruth, Stanley, Dan and Edward, who are at home.

The deceased lady was the possessor of an exceptionally strong personality and a fine character, being good and kind in and out of her family and beloved by all who knew her. Her strong intellect remained unimpaired to the hour of death.

The immediate family certainly have good reasons for mourning her loss for never a truer, more indulgent wife or mother ever lived than she. Besides the husband and children she leaves her aged mother, Mrs. B. Coniff, three sisters, Mrs. Henry Kronenwetter of Mosinee, Mrs. Geo. G. Knoller and Mrs. M. H. Altenburg of Dancy and three brothers, Matt Coniff of Tomahawk, John C. Coniff of Fallon, Nevada, and Thos. W. Grooms of Rhinelander.

Funeral services were held from the Catholic church at Dorchester Monday morning, Rev. Father Neissen officiating, and were largely attended. The remains were taken to Custer and laid at rest in St. Mary's cemetery that afternoon, Rev. Geo. A. Schemmer offering up prayers at the grave. The pallbearers were Peter Doyle, James Corrigan, John Higgins, Sylvester Reading, Richard Breitenstein and Michael O'Keefe.

Those who were present from away besides the immediate family were Mr. and Mrs. T. Trevitt of Ironwood, Mich.; Mrs. Henry Kronenwetter of Mosinee; Mrs. B. Coniff, Mrs. M. H. Altenburg and Mr. and Mrs. G. G. Knoller, of Dancy; Matt Coniff of Tomahawk, and Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Heffron and Mr. and Mrs. J. D. McHugh of this city.

The Summer Session.

The summer session of the Stevens Point Business College opened on Monday with 31 students. Mr. Wood is assisted by Supt. J. E. Roberts of the city schools, who has charge of the high school section. Classes have been formed in Greek, mediaeval, modern and U. S. history, plane geometry, arithmetic, commercial law, civil government, grammar, shorthand, typewriting, bookkeeping and business English. Students may enroll any time this week and receive credit for work satisfactorily done. The school is open from 8 in the morning until 12 noon.

ASHLEY.

One can almost see the corn and vegetables grow during the past week or ten days. The showers are just frequent enough to do a world of good.

Nearly everyone living in the vicinity of Ashley went to Knowlton July 4th and most of them attended the dancing party and entertainment. A big crowd was present and all had a good time.

G. E. Burk has a small piece of wheat, some of which now stands 48 inches high. A better looking field would be hard to find and his only regret is that he hasn't a hundred acres sowed to this grain. He will put in a larger acreage next season.

Haying is now on in dead earnest and the crop is a good one here. C. E. Shortell cut ten tons from three acres. Ed. Burk's crop is so heavy that it was up to him to buy a hay tedder or hire an extra man; as help is scarce, he invested in a machine.

Jas. McHugh, who went to North Dakota last spring to run a gasoline plowing outfit on the Anders-Van Hecke ranch, has returned home. He has no particular objection to the western prairies, but even the scrub brush in this section now looks good to him and he is more than ever impressed with Wisconsin.

A ten pound daughter was born on July 1st to Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Sparhawk. This makes eleven children in the family, all of whom are living, the oldest being 28 years of age and was married thirteen years ago. Their second daughter was twice married, her first husband dying several years ago. The little stranger who arrived last week Monday has the distinction of being aunt to six who are older than she.

Bids Wanted.

The street committee of the city of Stevens Point will receive bids per foot for about 3,000 ft. of cement curb and gutter, the city to furnish all material and forms. Bids to close at 4 o'clock p. m. Friday, July 12, 1912. The committee reserves right to reject any or all bids. Address Street Committee, Stevens Point, care of city clerk.

Dated July 6, 1912.

WILSON WINS IN FIGHT FOR NOMINATION

Is Chosen Democratic Candidate for President on the Forty-Sixth Ballot.

MARSHALL HIS RUNNING MATE

Long Deadlock Is Broken When Clark, Underwood and Foss Withdraw From Race—Indiana Man Wins on Second Ballot.

For President
WOODROW WILSON.

For Vice-President
THOMAS R. MARSHALL.

Baltimore, Md., July 3.—Gov. Woodrow Wilson of New Jersey received the unanimous nomination of the Democratic convention as its candidate for president of the United States after the forty-sixth ballot disclosed that he had an overwhelming majority of the votes.

The nomination was made unanimous on the motion of Senator William Stone of Missouri, manager for Speaker Champ Clark. One of the wildest demonstrations in this most memorable of all Democratic conventions followed. Cheers shook the rafters. The crowd outside joined in the noise-making and soon all Baltimore was in an uproar.

The nomination came after Champ Clark, Underwood and Foss had withdrawn from the race in the climax of the most remarkable deadlock in the history of the party.

Second place on the ticket went to Gov. Thomas R. Marshall of Indiana Governor Burke of North Dakota, who was his leading rival for the honor, made the motion making the nomination unanimous.

Adopt the Platform.

The platform as prepared by the committee on resolutions was adopted by a viva voce vote.

Chairman James then announced that nominations for vice-president were in order and directed the roll of the states to be called.

The following names were presented to the convention Gov. John Burke of North Dakota, Senator George B. Chamberlain of Oregon, Gov. Thomas R. Marshall of Indiana, Elmore W. Hurst of Illinois, Martin J. Wade of Iowa, Mayor James H. Preston of Baltimore.

Two ballots were taken. Governor Marshall led in the first and his lead increased to such an extent in the second roll call that before a third ballot could be taken Governor Burke withdrew and the nomination of Governor Marshall was made unanimous.

The first ballot for vice-president resulted: Marshall 389, Preston 58, Chamberlain 157, Hurst 77, Burke 305 2-3, Sulzer 3, Wade 26, Osborne 8, absent 46 1-3.

The second ballot: Marshall 645 1/2, Burke 387 1/2, Chamberlain 124.

Makes Rapid Gains.

Wilson began the day by gaining 108 votes on the forty-third ballot. He then had 602 votes, a clear majority.

On succeeding ballots, his gains mounted higher and higher.

At the end of the forty-fifth ballot, Senator Bankhead was recognized by Chairman James.

He announced the withdrawal of Underwood and declared that since his candidate could not be nominated, he would not stand in the way of the nomination of another candidate.

Senator Stone, Clark's manager, then was recognized, and in a short speech withdrew Clark's name and released his delegates.

Mayor Fitzgerald of Boston then took the platform and announced the withdrawal of Foss.

Forces Last Ballot.

At the end of his speech, Congressman Fitzgerald of New York moved that Governor Wilson be nominated by acclamation. The motion was seconded vociferously from the floor, but Missouri objected and the taking of the forty-sixth ballot was begun.

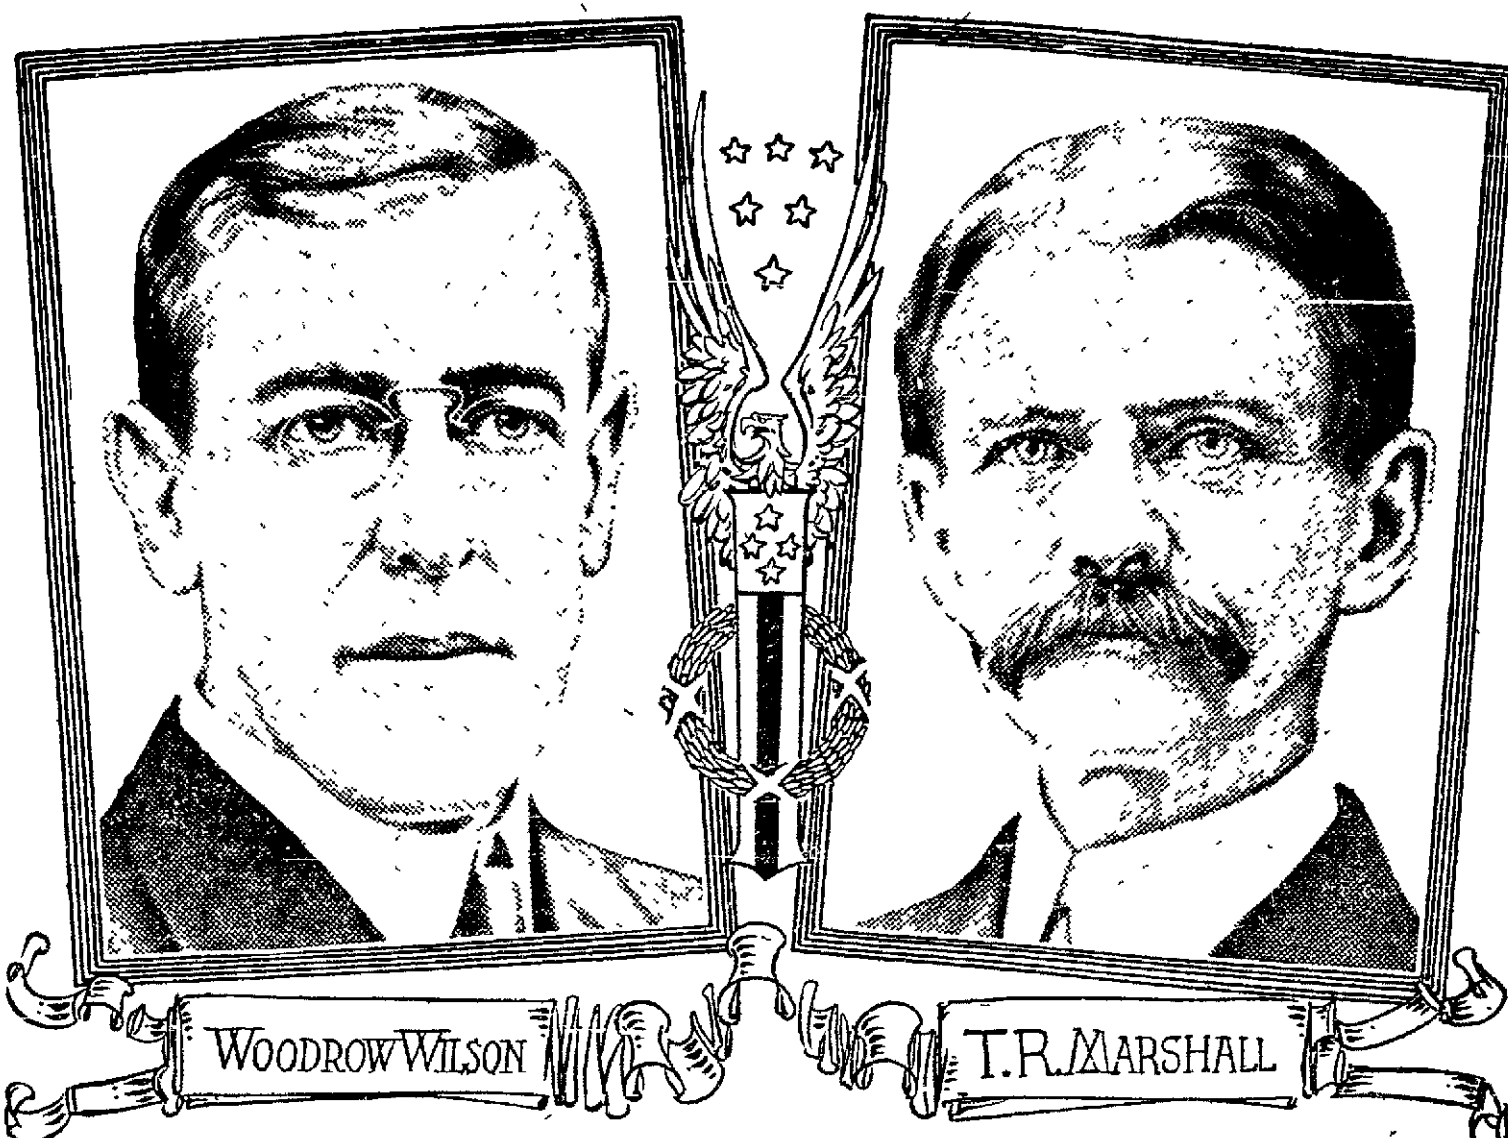

The din during the vote shook the huge hall to its rafters. The vote showed that Wilson had won.

When it had quieted down slightly, Chairman James, in a stentorian voice, announced that Mr. Wilson was the nominee of the party.

Another mighty cheer burst forth from the delegates and the galleries. Everybody by this time was standing on his feet. Thousands were waving hats and handkerchiefs. Horns, which had been provided in anticipation of a nomination, were blown without cessation. The demonstration bade fair to outdo any other of recent years.

DEMOCRATIC NATIONAL STANDARD BEARERS

In the forty-third ballot when its 58 votes were taken from Clark

Several other states followed, and when the totals were added up Wilson stood 602, Clark, 329, Underwood, 98 1/2; Harmon, 28, Foss, 27. Wilson gained 198 votes on that ballot.

On the forty-fourth ballot Wilson gained 27 more votes. The count stood: Wilson, 629; Clark, 306, Underwood, 99, Harmon, 27, Foss, 27.

Wilson gained 108 votes on the forty-fifth ballot, the first cast. Illinois' 58 delegates propelled the movement, and gains were made also from Connecticut, Idaho, Iowa, Louisiana, Maryland, Michigan, North Carolina, Tennessee, Virginia, West Virginia, Wisconsin and Hawaii.

Roll Call on Again.

Once more the call of the roll began. It was the forty-fourth ballot, and Wilson, in the beginning, gained one in Arizona. Colorado climbed aboard the "band wagon," giving Wilson a gain of nine.

This made the vote ten to two for Wilson. One of the two was Mrs. Anna B. Pitzer, sister-in-law of Speaker Clark.

In Idaho on this ballot Wilson lost half a vote, but he gained two, as Indiana's vote was cast solidly for him. Wilson gained 3 1/2 in Iowa, and Louisiana gave him one more.

Maryland gave Wilson a gain of 1 1/2 and Ohio gave him a gain of one more.

Pennsylvania's two Clark men swung into line and Wilson received the solid 76 from that state.

THE DEMOCRATIC PLATFORM

Reaffirms allegiance to Democratic principles as formulated Jefferson.

Declares for a tariff for revenue only.

Immediate downward revision, especially upon necessities of life.

Vigorous enforcement of criminal features of the anti-trust law.

Additional legislation to crush private monopoly.

Income tax and direct election of United States senators.

Prohibition of campaign contributions by corporations.

Publicity of campaign contributions.

Presidential preference primaries.

Single term for president.

Efficient supervision of public service corporations.

Revision of the banking laws.

Legislation to prevent devastation of lower Mississippi valley by floods and for improvement of channel.

Denounces—

Taft's vetoes of tariff bills.

Republicans for failure to redeem tariff revision promises.

Administration on charge of extravagance.

Aldrich commission's financial bill.

Present method of depositing government funds.

Felicitates present congress on its record.

Recommends investigation of agricultural credit societies in Europe with view of establishing system of rural credits in United States.

In Tennessee Wilson gained one. Utah cast its eight votes for him, a gain of 1 1/2 votes.

Wisconsin swung into line with its 26 solid votes, and a cheer from the Wilson adherents greeted the gain of four votes.

Woodrow Wilson lacked only 96 1/2 votes on the forty-fourth ballot, indicating a strong possibility of nomination on the forty-fifth ballot.

An expected break in the solid Alabama vote of 24 for Underwood failed to occur on the forty-fifth ballot. The Wilson people were anxiously awaiting a change in the Alabama vote in the hope that it would start the final landslide for their candidate.

New York's 90 again went to Clark and hope of a nomination on this ballot was lost.

In Ohio, Wilson gained, the vote being Harmon, 25; Wilson, 23.

Withdraws Underwood's Name.

At the end of the forty-fifth ballot Senator Bankhead arose to withdraw the name of Mr. Underwood.

"Underwood and his friends," said Senator Bankhead, "stand ready to support the candidate and the platform of his party."

Senator Bankhead said Mr. Underwood would stay in the house and perform "his great duties there without complaint."

Senator Bankhead concluded briefly with the statement that at Mr. Underwood's request he withdrew his name from further consideration, leaving his delegates free to vote for whom they chose.

When Senator Bankhead concluded, Senator Stone of Missouri went to the platform and asked unanimous consent to be allowed to make a statement.

Withdraws Clark.

"Speaking for Speaker Clark," said Senator Stone, "I will release—if release be necessary—any delegation instructed for him. I would not have a single delegation stay with him for a single roll call under any sense of obligation to him."

"I need not tell this convention or the friends of old Champ Clark that he will stand by the nominee of this convention loyally to the end."

When Senator Stone finished, Mayor Fitzgerald of Boston mounted the platform. He withdrew the name of Governor Foss of Massachusetts, and announced that the Massachusetts delegation would vote for Wilson.

Uproar greeted this announcement, for the nomination of Wilson had now become a practical certainty.

When the disorder subsided Representative Fitzgerald, who had just finished a conference with Murphy, took the stage. His advent marked the end of the opposition to Wilson as an organized body.

Plea for Harmony.

Fitzgerald made a plea for harmony. "We want to leave this hall a united Democracy, with victory in November assured."

In conclusion he said:

"I move that the roll call be dispensed with and that the convention proceed by acclamation to nominate that distinguished Democrat of New Jersey, Gov. Woodrow Wilson."

The regular order was demanded and the forty-sixth and final roll call of the states was begun.

"Alabama, 24 votes for Wilson," called out the chairman of that delegation.

"Arizona, 6 for Woodrow Wilson."

"Arkansas, 18 for Woodrow Wilson."

It was difficult for the clerk to proceed on account of the applause that greeted each response.

When Missouri was called, Senator

Stone, in a voice that could be heard throughout the hall, announced:

"Missouri casts 36 votes for Champ Clark."

The Missourians cheered and they were given a round of applause.

The result of the ballot was announced: Wilson, 990; Clark, 84; Harmon, 12.

Wilson had won and the nomination was made unanimous.

Days of Fighting.

The Democratic convention of 1912 will go down in history as being the most remarkable held by the party in the last fifty years. It was more fruitful of sensation and excitement than any political gathering ever held within the memory of the oldest delegate. It took seven days and thirteen sessions of the hardest and most strenuous fighting to pick the standard bearer who is to lead the party in the coming campaign. Forty-six times was the roll of states called before a decision was reached.

The first ballot was taken early Friday morning after an all night session devoted to oratory on the part of the champions of the different candidates, in which they set forth the reasons why their particular man was the man of all men to lead the party's battle for votes in November.

Story of the Ballots.

The first ballot resulted: Clark, 440 1/2; Wilson, 324; Harmon, 148; Underwood, 117; Marshall, 31; Baldwin, 22; Bryan, 1.

At the session Friday afternoon four ballots were taken, the net result of which showed slight gains for both Clark and Wilson.

Friday night seven ballots were taken. Clark started out with 445. His strength fluctuated during the night, but he wound up with an increase of four votes. His highest vote of the convention was reached on the tenth ballot, when he got 556 votes. Wilson started with 354 and that was his figure at closing time.

Eight ballots were taken Saturday afternoon, with Clark's strength gradually dwindling and Wilson's gaining.

The six ballots of Saturday evening ended with Clark's vote down to 463 1/2 and Wilson's up to 407 1/2.

Eight ballots were taken Monday afternoon, Wilson's gains increasing steadily, while his chief opponent continued to drop.

Monday night brought the total of ballots up to 42, with the deadlock still tight. The forty-second ballot gave Wilson 494 and Champ Clark 430. The ratio of increase and decrease in each case being gradual.

Bryan Is Storm Center.

In the matter of noise making and tumultuous demonstrations the convention equaled, if it did not actually surpass, any political convention in history.

William Jennings Bryan was the storm center of most of the exciting incidents. The first of these was when he made his bitter fight against the election of Judge Parker as temporary chairman and lost out.

Thursday night Colonel Bryan threw a bomb into the convention and started the biggest uproar that had broken loose up to that time when he introduced a resolution declaring Morgan, Belmont and Ryan enemies of the party, and placing the convention squarely on record against the nomination of any person who was in any way connected with these men or their interests, or in any way under their influence. Bryan made a remarkably fervid speech, denouncing the predatory interests and Morgan, Belmont and Ryan in particular.

The resolution was carried by a vote of 599 to 130.

HOPES PARTY WILL NOT REGRET MOVE

Comment of Gov. Wilson When He Hears News of His Nomination.

HONOR DEEPLY APPRECIATED

Switch of Illinois Delegates to Ranks of New Jersey Executive First Indication of Break in Long Deadlock.

Sea Girt, N. J.—Governor Wilson was seated on the veranda of the "little white house" with Mrs. Wilson and his daughters when he received news of his nomination as the Democratic presidential candidate.

"The honor is as great as can come to any man by the nomination of a party," he said, "especially under the circumstances. I hope I appreciate it at its true value; but just at this moment I feel the tremendous responsibility it involves even more than I feel the honor."

"I hope with all my heart that the party will never have reason to regret it."

When the news of the breaking of the long deadlock was received over the wire from the Baltimore convention hall the governor permitted himself an expansive grin of delight and shook hands all around. Then he settled down to work, but soon the inrush of his friends put a stop to that and an impromptu reception followed.

Victory Delights Daughters.

If the governor managed to conceal his pleasure over his victory in the convention, his family did not; indeed, they did not try, and his three daughters danced about the house in a whirl of happiness.

The first important news from the convention hall, the switch of Illinois to the Wilson ranks, was carried to the executive mansion by three breathless reporters shouting: "Governor, governor, Illinois has gone to you!"

At the moment the governor was in the bath tub and the only immediate reply was the sound of vigorous splashing. A moment later through the door came the assurance that Mr. Wilson was "perfectly delighted."

Says Delegates Voted for Principle.

After the governor had finished his bath he came out to the newspaper tent on the lawn.

"It has occurred to me," he said, addressing the reporters, "that you may have wondered why I have not shown more emotion during the convention proceedings, that some of you must have thought I felt so cocksure of the result that I took the details as a matter of fact."

"Nothing could be further from the truth. My emotion is so deep that it could not effervesce; and I felt more solemn as the nomination drew closer. I feel that the delegates at Baltimore in voting for me voted not for a man, but for a principle. I feel that they believed I represent them and not myself. Under a responsibility so grave I could not find it in my heart to kick up my heels in elation."

At this moment the governor's secretary announced the forty-third ballot.

"Six hundred and two votes for you, governor," he said.

"It looks like business," the governor answered. Then he said: "Have you told Mrs. Wilson?"

"No, sir, I came first to you."

"Please tell her at once," he replied.

Hears of Underwood's Withdrawal.

Governor Wilson was posing for a photograph with his wife and daughters when he was informed that Underwood had withdrawn.

"Well, I declare," said the governor, "that will give me enough; they all go to me."

Mrs. Wilson, whose native state is Georgia, said:

"The only thing I regret is that Georgia did not vote for Mr. Wilson."

When Governor Wilson received news of his nomination he said:

"The honor is as great as can come to any man by the nomination of a party, especially under the circumstances. I hope I appreciate it at its true value; but just at this moment I feel the tremendous responsibility it involves even more than I feel the honor."

"I hope with all my heart that the party will never have reason to regret it."

Balloon Bursts, Five Die.

Atlantic City, N. J., July 3.—Melvin Vaniman and his crew of four men were killed here Tuesday when his balloon, the Akron, in which he intended to make a trip across the Atlantic ocean, exploded half a mile in the air. Vaniman's home is Akron, O.

QUIT TO BECOME GOVERNOR

Gained Fame as a Writer and After Dinner Speaker—Made Executive as Reward for Campaign Against Corruption.

Career of Governor Wilson in a Nutshell

Woodrow Wilson (christened Thomas Woodrow Wilson), born of Scotch-Irish antecedents, Staunton, Va., December 28, 1856.

Went with family—his father, a Presbyterian clergyman, being called to a new field—to Augusta, Ga., 1858.

His father being engaged as college professor in Columbia, S. C., went to that city, 1870.

Entered Davidson's college, North Carolina, 1873.

Forced by ill health to refrain from study for some time, entered Princeton, 1875.

Graduated, 1879.

Entered law department, University of Virginia, 1879.

Began law practice in Atlanta, 1882.

Entered Johns Hopkins college for post-graduate course, 1883.

Married Miss Ellen Louise Axson, Savannah, 1885.

Published first book, "Congressional Government," 1885.

Became professor in Bryn Mawr college, then went to similar place in Wesleyan college, Connecticut, and became professor of philosophy and law in Princeton in 1890.

Chosen president of Princeton, 1902.

Nominated for governor by New Jersey Democrats, September 15, 1910.

Elected governor, November 8, 1910.

It was as a lawyer that Woodrow Wilson first made his bow to the world, and as president of Princeton he became more widely known, but it was as a reformer that he achieved the limelight, and it was reform that landed him in the New Jersey governor's chair.

Born in Staunton, Va., December 28, 1856, he was christened Thomas Woodrow Wilson, but in his youth he cut off the "Thomas" because, he said, he wanted to use only one name, and Thomas W. Wilson would have been too commonplace.

Graduating from Princeton in 1879, he practiced law for two years in Atlanta, Ga., before he became an educator. He taught history and political economy for three years in Bryn Mawr college, and was instructor in the same branches for two years in Wesleyan university before he was engaged as a teacher of jurisprudence and politics in Princeton, his alma mater.

He became president of Princeton August 1, 1902, and held that position until October, 1910, when he resigned to become governor. In 1885 he married Miss Helen Louise Axson of Atlanta, Ga.

Governor Wilson holds A. B., LL. D., Ph. D. and other degrees from Princeton, University of Virginia, Johns Hopkins, Brown, Harvard, Williams, Dartmouth and Yale universities.

Gained First Fame as a Writer.

It was as a writer that Mr. Wilson first got before the people as a politician.

"A prophet is not without honor save in his own country," and through his writings and after-dinner speeches Mr. Wilson was being talked about as a reformer long before the people of New Jersey considered him seriously.

As far back as 1904 the people in the west were "talking about" Wilson as a presidential possibility, but New Jersey knew nothing about him or about it, and again at Denver, in 1908, he was "spoken of."

But it was not until 1910 that the people of the doctor's adopted state "discovered" him.

Then the Democratic bosses of the corporation-ridden state decided that it was time to elect a governor.

"Man of the Hour" in New Jersey.

Considering reformers, they picked on Wilson as a "man of the hour," and ran him. Wilson was elected, but the bosses soon were led to believe that they had "picked a lemon," for no sooner did "prexy" have his long legs firmly entwined about the governor's chair rungs than he began loudly to defy. He defied the bosses, he defied the corporations, he defied everybody while the defying was good, and he made a noise that was heard throughout the country.

SYNOPSIS.

The story opens at Monte Carlo with Col. Terence O'Rourke, a military officer and something of a gambler, in his hotel. Learning on the balcony he sees a beautiful girl who suddenly enters the elevator and passes from sight. At the gaming table O'Rourke notices two men watching him. One is the Hon. Bertie Des Trebes, a duelist. The viscount tells him the French government has directed him to O'Rourke as a man who would undertake a secret mission. At his apartment O'Rourke, who had agreed to undertake the mission, finds a mysterious letter. The viscount arrives, hands a sealed package to O'Rourke, who is not to open it until on the ocean. A pair of dainty slippers are seen protruding from under a doorway curtain. The Irishman finds the owner of the mysterious feet to be his wife, Beatrice, from whom he had run away a year previous. They are reconciled, and opening the letter he finds that a Rangoon law firm offers him the 100,000 pounds for a jewel known as the Pool of Flame and left to him by a dying friend, but now in keeping of one named Chambret in Algeria. O'Rourke warns the nobleman in a duel. The wife bids O'Rourke farewell and he promises to soon return with the reward. He discovers both Glynn and the viscount on board the ship. As he finds Chambret there is an attack on O'Rourke that he has left the Pool of Flame with the governor general, who at sight of a signet ring given the colonel will deliver over the jewel. Arriving at Algiers the Irishman finds the governor general away. Des Trebes makes a mysterious appointment, and tells O'Rourke that he has gained possession of the jewel. Chambret, in possession of the jewel, masters the viscount, a duel O'Rourke masters the viscount, and starts by ship for Rangoon. He finds the captain to be a smuggler who tries to steal the jewel. It is finally secured by the captain and O'Rourke escapes to the land. With the aid of one Danny and his sweetheart, O'Rourke recovers the Pool of Flame. On board ship once more bound for Rangoon, a mysterious lady appears.

CHAPTER XIX.

The wanderer had come upon Mrs. Prynné but once since he had boarded the Panjab. That morning, himself early astride because of his vague misgivings, he had discovered her on the hurricane deck of the liner; an inconspicuous, slight figure in the shadow of a life-boat, leaning upon the rail and gazing with (he fancied) troubled eyes, out and across the waste below Ismailia.

Though she must have been conscious of nearing footsteps, she had not stirred, and he had passed on, gaining but a fugitive glimpse of a profile sweetly serious; nor had she appeared either at breakfast or luncheon. A circumstance which led him to surmise that she did not court observation: an idiosyncrasy which seemed passing strange in a woman so fair.

He told himself that she wore an air of watchfulness, of vague expectancy, as though she, like himself, feared some untoward mishap; that she had the manner of one definitely apprehensive, constantly on guard against some unforeseen peril.

Now, he asked himself, what could it be? What threatened her? And why?

He dimly promised himself the pleasure of her acquaintance, relying in the rapid intimacy that springs up between strangers on a long voyage, with a still more indefinite intention of putting himself at her service in any cause that she might be pleased to name, provisionally: she must not interfere with his plans for reaching Rangoon "in ninety days."

That night he was hoping to find the lady at dinner; but though the ship's company was small, he failed to see her in the saloon, at either the captain's table, the chief officer's or the doctor's table; nor, so far as he could determine, was she taking the air on deck. Was it possible, then, that he had been right, that she had a reason equally as compelling as his own for secluding herself? Or, was it simply (and infinitely more probably) that Mrs. Prynné was indisposed, an enervated victim of excessive heat?

The latter conjecture proved apparently the right one, Mrs. Prynné failing to appear during the two following days, while the Panjab was rocking down the Red Sea channel; and O'Rourke grew interested enough (he had little else to occupy his mind, for a duller voyage he had never known) to give Danny permission to pursue his inquiries: with an injunction, however, prohibiting too lavish an expenditure of the boy's wealth of affection. Whereupon Danny returned with the information that the mistress of Cecile, the maid, was suffering from heat exhaustion.

This was entirely reasonable. O'Rourke accepted the demolition of his airy castles of Romance, laughed at himself, in part was successful in putting the woman out of mind; doubtless, in time, he would have done so altogether, had not the lady chosen to take the air the night that the Panjab negotiated the Straits of Bab-el-Mandeb. For on that same night, O'Rourke, himself wakeful, was minded to sit up and watch the lights of Perim Island heave into view.

O'Rourke, in a deck-chair on the starboard side, well cloaked in the shadow of the deck above, watched the other passengers, one by one, quiet their chatter, yawn, stretch and slip below to stuffy staterooms.

He suffered a dreamy eye to rove where it would, greedy of the night's superb illusion.

Four bells—two o'clock—chimed upon his consciousness like a physical shock. He verified the hour by his watch and, reluctantly enough, agreed that it was time he got himself to bed. He half rose from his chair, then sank back with an inaudible catch of his breath. Without warning the apparition of a white-clad woman had invaded the promenade deck. For an instant he hardly credited his eyes, then, with a nod of recognition, he identified Mrs. Prynné.

Unquestionably unconscious of his presence in the shadow, she fell to pacing to and fro. Now and again, she stopped, and with chin cradled in her small hands, elbows on the rail, watched the approaching cliffs of Arabia; then, with perhaps a sigh, returned to her untimely constitutional.

Partly because he had no wish to startle her, partly because he was glad to watch unobserved the had a rare eye for beauty, the O'Rourke), the wanderer sat on without moving, stirred only by active curiosity. The strangeness of her appearance upon deck at such an hour fascinated his imagination no less than her person held his eye. He gave himself over to vain and profitless speculation.

Why, he wondered, should she keep to her cabin the greater part of the evening, only to take the air when none might be supposed to observe her?

Why, if not to escape such observation? Then, he told himself, he must be right in his supposition that she had something to fear, someone to avoid. What or whom? What was it all, what the mystery that, as he watched her, seemed to grow, to cling about her like some formless, impalpable garment?

Events conspired to weave the man into the warp and woof of her affairs; more quickly than he could grasp the reason for his sudden action, he found himself a-foot and dashing aft at top speed. But an instant gone Mrs. Prynné had passed him, unmolested and wrapped in her splendid isolation; and then from the after part of the deck he had heard a slight and guarded cry of distress, and a small scuffling sound.

In two breaths he was by her side and found her struggling desperately in the arms of a lascar—a deck-hand on the steamer.

At first the strangeness of the business so amazed O'Rourke that he paused and held his hand, briefly rooted in action. For although it was apparent that she had been caught off her guard, wholly unprepared against assault, and while she struggled fiercely to break the lascar's hold, the woman still uttered no cry. A single scream would have brought her aid; yet she held her tongue.

The two, the woman's slight, white figure and the lascar's gaunt and sinewy one, strained and fought, swaying silently in the shadows, tensely, with the effect of a fragment of some disordered nightmare. But then, as the lascar seemed about to overpower his victim, O'Rourke, electrified, sprang upon the man's back. With one strong arm deftly he embraced the fellow, an elbow beneath his chin forcing his head up and back. With the other hand O'Rourke none too gently tore away an arm encircling the woman. Then wrenching the two apart, he sent a knee crashing into the small of the lascar's back, all but breaking him in two, and so flung him sprawling into the scuppers.

Without a word the man slid upon his shoulders a full half-dozen feet, while O'Rourke had a momentary glimpse of his face in the moonlight—dark-skinned and sinister of expression with its white, glaring eyeballs. Then, in one bound, he was on his feet again and springing lithely back to the attack: and as he came on a jagged gleam of moonlight ran like lightning down the sinuous and formidable length of a kris, most deadly of knives.

O'Rourke fell back a pace or two. His own hands were empty; he had nothing but naked fists and high courage to pit against the lascar and his kris. Keenly alert, he threw himself into a pose of defence.

But O'Rourke had forgotten the woman; it was enough that he had made possible her escape, and he had no thought other than she had fled. It was, therefore, with as much surprise as relief that he caught the glimmer of her white figure as she thrust herself before him and saw the lascar bring up in the middle of a leap, his nose not an inch from the muzzle of an army Webley of respect-compelling caliber.

Simultaneously, he heard her voice, clear and incisive if low of tone: "Drop that knife!"

The kris shivered upon the deck. "Faith!" murmured the Irishman, "and what manner of woman is this, now?"

The lascar stood as rigid as though carved out of stone, long, gaunt legs shining softly brown beneath his cool, dazzling white cummerbund, the upper half of his body lost in the shadow of the deck, a gray blur standing for his torso.

O'Rourke stepped forward, with a quick movement kicking the kris overboard, and would have seized the fellow but that the woman intervened.

She said decisively: "If you please—no."

Bewildered, O'Rourke hesitated. "I beg your pardon—" he said in confusion.

She did not reply directly; her attention was all for the lascar, whom her revolver still covered. To him, "Got!" she said sharply, with a significant motion of the weapon.

The lascar stepped back, with a single wriggle losing himself in the dense shadows.

O'Rourke fairly gasped amazement at the woman, who, on her part, retreated slowly until her back touched the railing. She remained very quiet and thoroughly mistress of herself, betraying agitation only by slightly quickened breathing and cold pallor. Her eyes raked the deck on either hand: it was plain that she had no faith in the lascar, perhaps apprehended his return; yet her splendid control of her nerves evoked the Irishman open admiration.

"Faith!" he cried, breaking the tense silence, "tis yourself shames me, madam, with the courage of ye!"

She flashed him a glance, and laughed slightly. "Thank you," she returned. "I'm sure I don't know where I should be now but for you."

"Twas nothing at all. But ye'll pardon me for suggesting that ye have made a mistake, madam."

"A mistake?" she echoed; and then, thoughtfully: "No, I shouldn't call it that."

"Letting him go, I mean. Neither of us, I believe, could well identify him. When ye report this outrage to the captain, whom will ye accuse?"

"I shall accuse no one," she said quietly, "for I shan't report the affair."

"Ye will not—" he cried, astounded. "Indeed, I am quite sincere: I shall do nothing whatever about it. It is, moreover, a favor which I shall ask of you, to say nothing of the matter to anyone."

O'Rourke hesitated, unwilling to believe that he had heard aright. "Believe me," she was saying earnestly, "I have good reason for making a request so unaccountable to you."

"But—but—Mrs. Prynné!"

"Oh, you know me then?" she interrupted sharply. And her look was curious and intent.

"I—tis—faith!" O'Rourke stammered. He felt his face burn. "Me valet told me," he confessed miserably. "Tis a bit of flirtation he's been having with your maid, Cecile, I believe, madam."

"Ah, yes." She seemed unaccountably relieved. "You, then, are Colonel O'Rourke?"

He bowed. "Terence O'Rourke, madam, and at your service, believe me."

"I am very glad," she said slowly, eyeing him deliberately, "that, since I had to be aided, it came through one of whom I have heard so much—"

"Faith, Mrs. Prynné—I!"

"And I thank you a second time, very heartily!" She offered him her hand, and smiled bewitchingly.

"Tis embarrassing me ye are," he protested. "Faith, to be thanked twice for so slight a service! I can only wish that I might do more—"

"It is possible," she said, apparently not in the least displeased by his presumption—"It is possible that I may take you at your word, Colonel O'Rourke."

In her eyes, intent upon his, he fancied that he recognized an amused flicker, with, perhaps, a trace of deeper emotion: the kindling interest of a woman in a strong man, with whose signals he was not unfamiliar. Pride and his conceit stirred in his breast.

"Tis the delight of me life," he told her in an ecstasy.

"Don't be too sure, I warn you, colonel." Her manner was now arch, her smile entirely charming. "It might be no light service I should require of you."

"Ye couldn't ask one too heavy."

But 'tis weary ye are, Mrs. Prynné," he inquired, solicitous.

"Very." There was in fact an indefinite modulation of weariness in her voice. "I'm only a woman," she said faintly, with a little gesture of deprecation; "and my ways are hedged about with grave perils—"

"Tis the O'Rourke would gladly brave them all for ye, madam," he declared gallantly. "Command me—what ye will."

She lifted her gaze to his, coloring divinely there in the moon-glamor. He looked into her curiously bewitching eyes and saw there an appeal and a strange little tender smile. Her head was so near his shoulder that he was aware of the vague, alluring perfume of her hair. Her scarlet lips parted . . .

And he became suddenly aware that it behooved him to hold himself well in hand. It were an easy matter to imagine himself swept off his feet, into a whirl of infatuation, with a little encouragement. And he was not unsophisticated enough to fail to see that encouragement would not be lacking if he chose to recognize it.

grinding crash and shriek of riven steel somewhere deep in the hold.

Impossibly dismayed, they stared with wide and questioning eyes at one another, through a long minute filled with an indescribable uproar: a succession of shocks and thumps in the interior of the vessel gradually dimming in severity while, in a pandemonium of clamorous voices, the liner, like a stricken thing, hesitated in its southward surge, then slowly limped into a dead halt on the face of the waters.

CHAPTER XX.

O'Rourke's first fears were for the woman, his first words a lie designed to reassure her.

"What—what does it mean?" she gasped faintly, her face as white as marble, her eyes wide and terrified.

"Sure, I'm thinking 'tis nothing at all," he answered readily, with a smile amending, "nothing of any great consequence, that is to say. Permit me to escort ye to your cabin."

"I'm not afraid," Mrs. Prynné interjected.

"Faith, I see that, madam. But your maid, now—? Would it not be well to return to your stateroom and quiet her, whilst I'm ascertaining the cause of this trouble? I promise to advise ye instantly, whether there's danger or not."

"You're very thoughtful," she returned. "I'm sure you're right. Thank you."

He escorted her to her stateroom and left her at the door, remarking its number and renewing his pledge to return in ten minutes—more speedily if possible. He was back in five, with a long face.

Mrs. Prynné answered instantly his double-knocked summons and, stepping out quickly, closed the door tight. In the fraction of a second that it was wide, however, O'Rourke saw one side of the stateroom warm and bright with electric light, and sitting there, Cecile the maid, completely dressed, wide awake and vigilant. The girl was French and sullenly handsome after her kind. O'Rourke got an impression of a resolute chin and resolute eyes under level brows; and he did not in the least doubt that she was quite prepared to make good and effectual use of the revolver which she held pointed directly at the opening.

Why?

From her mistress' poised, too—one arm rigid at her side, the hand concealed in the folds of her gown—O'Rourke divined that she was alert, armed, on her guard no less than the maid. But she left him no time to puzzle over the mystery.

"Well?" she demanded breathlessly.

"Tis as I thought, Mrs. Prynné. A cylinder-head has blown off and done no end of damage. We're crippled, if in no danger. The other screw will take us far as Aden, but there we'll have to wait for the next boat."

Mrs. Prynné's face clouded with dismay. "How long—a day or two?" she demanded.

"Mayhap," he replied, no less disconsolate; "mayhap as much as a week. Faith, 'tis meself that would it were otherwise, but I fear there's no mending matters."

She regarded him thoughtfully for an instant.

"Then you, too, travel in haste, colonel?"

"Indeed I do so, madam. Me fortune hangs upon me haste. If I get there"—he checked himself in time, the word Rangoon upon his lips—"too late, 'twill be all up. I'm heavy with an urgent enterprise, madam." And he smiled.

The woman looked past him, down the dusk of the gangway, apparently pondering her dilemma. "What will you do?" she inquired at length.

"Faith!" he said, disturbed, "that's hard to say."

She flashed him an ironic look. "You mean you are resigned to the inevitable?"

"Be the powers!" he cried in resentment. "I'm resigned to nothing that doesn't please me. Is it that ye ask me aid? Sure, if ye do, neither the inevitable nor the impossible shall keep ye from arriving at Bombay, and on time!"

Polyglot Chicago.

The introduction of Polish as a course in the public schools of Chicago, by Superintendent Ella Flagg Young, is an interesting experiment, though some may regard it as a rash one. There is a tendency among children of foreign parentage to drop their native language, while it would no doubt add to the general culture of the rising generation in our large cities if they would retain it along with the prescribed studies. If the experiment is successful, Mrs. Young proposes to follow it up with other languages. There are perhaps 150,000 Poles in the city, but there are 14 tongues, each of which is spoken by more than 10,000 persons. Newspapers appear in ten languages and church services are held in twenty. In all there are forty different languages of dialects employed to express the thoughts, needs and emotions of the population. Chicago is the second largest Bohemian city in the world, the third Swedish, the fourth Norwegian, the fifth Polish and the fifth German. If all these are to be instructed in their national language and literature the city will eventually need an Ellhu Burritt or a George F. Marsh to direct its educational activities.—Boston Transcript.

Singing and the Lungs.

It is well known that singing, like whistling, is a fine exercise for the lungs, and some doctors advise those who fear consumption to go in for singing for this reason.

At the same time they, of course, do not advance the claim that singing alone will save anyone from or cure consumption. Acquire the habit of taking the big deep breath, which is a primary requisite of any kind of singing, bad or good, and the physical joy derived from it will never allow you to relapse into lazy breathing.

GOOD NIGHT'S SLEEP

No Medicine So Beneficial to Brain and Nerves.

Lying awake nights makes it hard to keep awake and do things in day time. To take "tonics and stimulants" under such circumstances is like setting the house on fire to see if you can put it out.

The right kind of food promotes refreshing sleep at night and a wide awake individual during the day.

A lady changed from her old way of eating Grape-Nuts, and says:

"For about three years I had been a great sufferer from indigestion. After trying several kinds of medicine, the doctor would ask me to drop off potatoes, then meat, and so on, but in a few days that craving, gnawing feeling would start up, and I would vomit everything I ate and drank."

"When I started on Grape-Nuts, vomiting stopped, and the bloated feeling which was so distressing disappeared entirely."

"My mother was very much bothered with diarrhoea before commencing the Grape-Nuts, because her stomach was so weak she could not digest her food. Since using Grape-Nuts food she is well, and says she don't think she could do without it."

"It is a great brain restorer and nerve builder, for I can sleep as sound and undisturbed after a supper of Grape-Nuts as in the old days when I could not realize what they meant by a 'bad stomach.' There is no medicine so beneficial to nerves and brain as a good night's sleep, such as you can enjoy after eating Grape-Nuts."
